Teal, who was for more than a month acting as a nurse to our sick at the hospital, who all testify that he was most kind and attentive in the discharge of his duties, cheerfully sacrificing his own comfort to supply their wants and relieve the unpleasantness of their situation, the most unpleasant imaginable, that of being sick far away from home, and the dear ones there. He sickened and died far away from the presence and without the comforts of his dear wife, though the kindness of his fellow soldiers afforded him every comfort and relief in their power. … Signed by J.C. Death of Soldiers

1 Died at his father’s residence in Cumberland County, on Friday the 17th instant, James L. Culbreth aged about 18 years. The subject of this memoir, like many other noble and patriotic sons of our land, forsaking all the comforts and pleasures of home, bid adieu to Father, Brothers and Sisters, shouldered his musket and went forth to battle and to victory for his country and country’s rights. He volunteered with Captain Blocker, in the Cumberland Plough Boys; his company was immediately ordered to Western Virginia, and where not doubt from the many privations and hardship of the army, he contracted the disease which terminated his life. His Company having been ordered back to Petersburg, he was granted a furlough to visit his sweet home again and loved ones there. He came home, was taken sick and died in a very short time, very unexpectedly to his family and friends. James was a good boy loved by all who knew him. He professed religion and joined the Methodist Episcopal Church when very young. And while his remains lie silently in the grave by the side of a pious and devoted mother, his spirit we hope is tuning his harp of gold to sing praises in endless days around the throne of God and the Lamb.

Deaths of Soldiers
• Died at the Hospital at Kinston, on the 24th April, from the effects of a wound in the jaw, received the night of the 13th skirmish with the enemy, Private Love Melvin, of Capt. Strange’s Company, 2nd Cavalry, 19th Regiment N.C. Troops. At the call of his country, like a patriot and lover of liberty, he was ready to sacrifice his life in his country’s cause, rather than the ruthless hordes of Lincoln should ever succeed in subjugating the South. The love of liberty and his country were so powerful in his heart he could not willingly stay at home while the invader was approaching. On the 29th of June last he volunteered, not for 6 or 12 months, but for the period of the war. He received the fatal blow as a valiant soldier, with his face to the enemy; and after ten days suffering, he yielded his spirit to God who gave it. He is gone where the war-whoop and the roaring of cannon and rattling of musketry will no more be heard, and the field will not be bristled with the glistening bayonets, and where men’s garments are not dyed in the gore of human blood; wht we trust all is peace with him. He leaves an aged father and mother, three sisters and a brother, to mourn his departure, and many relations and friends and his entire company the same. Thus we may say that Love was a good son and was beloved by all who knew him.

Deaths of Soldiers

• We learn that Absalom Myers, Esq. of Mississippi, formerly of Anson County, in this State, which he represented in our State Senate, has six sons in the Confederate Army—two at Corinth, two recently at Yorktown, but now in the neighborhood of Richmond, one of whom was wounded in the battle of Manassas, and two others at other points. Few men can boast of giving more sons to the defense of the Confederacy. They are all native of North Carolina.

• Among the killed in the late battle, we deeply regret to learn, is Brigadier General James Johnston Pettigrew, of this State. Gen. Pettigrew was a son of the late Hon. E. Pettigrew, of Tyrell County, N.C. He graduated at the N.C. University in 1847, and was about 34 years of age. Young as he was, he had already gained high distinction as a lawyer and a statesman. Of almost unbounded intellect and the most dauntless courage, he has exhibited military qualities of so high an order, as to have been proposed, while Colonel of N.C. Volunteers, as a suitable Commanded-in-chief, for the Confederate armies.

• Departed this life on Wednesday the 5th inst., at the residence of his father, near the Gulf, Chatham County, Lieut. DeWitt C. Harris, eldest son of Brooks Harris, Esq., aged 27 years, 4 months and 19 days. Upon the breaking out of the war, he felt it his duty to give up his cherished dreams of happiness and to go forth at the call of his country. It was urged upon him, that he should have a substitute, but his reply was, “It is my duty to go.” He volunteered in the Chatham Rifles, and bore without a murmur the privations and hardships of the Peninsular campaign. Disease fastened upon him, and reall incapacitated him for any military service; but his eagerness to repel the invaders, supposing that he might be able to endure the cavalry service, he accepted a Lieutenancy in Capt. Harris’s Troop of Mounted Rangers. Exposure soon prostrated him upon a bed of sickness…. He sent for his pastor and at his hands received Baptism. Thence he looked forward anxiously for the time when he should leave this world. A short time before he expired, he said, “How pleasant it is to die!” After this, he never spoke. In the full possession of all his faculties, he lay quietly waiting the summons, and, without a struggle or gasp, yielded up his soul to God in the confident expectation of a joyful resurrection.

He volunteered in November and went into camp at Raleigh the 20th of Dec. After sometime he was detailed to go to the Hospital to nurse the sick. So kind and warm-hearted was he that he gave up his bed and blankets to the sick, to render them comfortable. When he could have a few spare hours during the night, he would lie on the hard benches, without any covering. In a few weeks after so much exposure, he was taken with severe pneumonia, from which he suffered intensely, came home on a sick furlough, and for three weeks was very unwell, and before he was at all able to perform military duty, he longed to be again in the army. Contrary to the remonstrances of his physician, and the entreaties of his friends, he bade adieu to all who were near and dear to him. His wishes were: “If I die in camp, bury me there: If I am killed in battle, bury me on the battlefield.” After receiving the fatal wound, he lived but a few hours…. He was a consistent member of the Cartledge’s Creek Baptist Church, Richmond County, NC.

3 This blow has fallen doubly heavy on his bereaved parents, followed so soon by the death of another son, the noble Angus. On the banks of a little stream that winds its way into the Potomac, we buried him. Gently and silently we laid him in a hastily made grave, and with bursting hearts and unutterable anguish we saw the earth close over him, who but a few hours before was in all the strength of man-hood. When life’s fitful fever is over and we too are called from earth, may we hope to meet him in Heaven, and enjoy the reunion with him whom we loved. In Memoriam

  Graduated at the University of North Carolina, in the class of 1858, read law with Judge Pearson for two years, was admitted to the bar in 1860, and while attending the Superior Court in Brunswick County in April 1861, received information of the order of Gov. Ellis to seize Fort Caswell. He returned at once to his home and volunteered as a private in the ranks of the Wilm. Light Infantry … After the battle of Richmond he was promoted to a 1st Lieutenancy, and was in the command of his company, at the battle of Boonsboro’ and on the bloody day when he gave precious offering of his young life and hopes to his country and to glory. Wounded in the head, he was re-moved by the Federal authorities to Washington on Thursday, the day succeeding the battle, and lingered in suffering until the light of the Sabbath morning fell on a brow whence care and pain had departed forevermore. Consigned at first to the rude grave of the prisoner, he was afterwards committed to consecrated ground, with the solemn service of the church, and the tears of the noble women who ministered at his couch, who in the stranger and oppressor’s land, loved him for his country’s sake. Such is the record of his life—simple, indeed, but to those who knew Tom Cowan, eloquent beyond the expression of words.

He will not be able to walk till this space is filled by the formation of new bone. He is suffering greatly.

5 It was on the afternoon of the 4th of October 1862, that the writer of this, while in Staunton, Virginia, entered the General Hospital. It was the chapel of the deaf, dumb and blind asylum, but it is now called Ward or Room No. 44. According to an arrangement made by the writer the very large and fine organ of the chapel was played every after noon for the benefit of the wounded and sick soldiers. Although it was the same blind man playing who always played, still the tone of the Organ appeared softer and sweeter than usual. He was playing “Home Sweet Home,” and accompanying it with his fine voice. Many of the patients were shedding tears while others appeared asleep, and, perhaps, in their dreams “pledged their wine cups and fondly swore from their wives and their weeping friends never to part.” The organist was whispered to and told to play “Wait for the Wagon.” No sooner had he commenced than our poor dear soldiers wiped away their tears, took their crutches and sticks and then hobbled around the organ. What a scene for a painter! Not for a Hogarth, for he delighted in caricature, but for a Murillio; for a man having a soul, it was a scene never to be forgotten. The sick men in every stage of convalescence, and the wounded men short a hand, a foot, an arm, a leg, in fact wounded in every conceivable manner. When they had surrounded the organ what a picture! Each man having on something quaint and peculiar in the way of costume, with their ghostly faces and emancipated forms produced a scene that would have caused West’s picture of “Christ Healing the Sick” to sink into insignificance. With all this they were cheerful and some sung. After one had seen them suffer so much from sickness, amputation and wounds, and now to see them in such a high state of convalescence was well calculated to produce a thrill of pleasure.

brother he was kind and affectionate, as a soldier he was gallant and brave, and his death will ever be lamented by his comrades and friends.

• Edward McIver, a private in Company H. (Moore County Rifles) 30th Reg’t N.C. Troops, departed this life at Port Royal, Va., on the 13th of December last, aged 24 years and 22 days. In May he offered himself a willing sacrifice to his country’s call; and in a few short weeks he was engaged with the enemy in the hard fought battles around Richmond and in quick secession the battles of Manassas and Sharpsburg, in all of which he made himself useful in driving back the foe. In all the varied duties assigned him in camp or upon the battle field he rendered a cheerful obedience, and was not found faltering or wanting at his post. But, alas, he is not more. Another gallant soldier has fallen from our ranks and his company mourns the loss of one of its bravest men. His illness was short. He was ministered by a skillful N.C. physician, and had the attentions of a particular friend and near neighbor, who staid by him till his days were numbered, and followed him to a cedar tree in Academy Square, that marks his last resting place. But, oh! How consoling, how gratifying to his widowed mother and sisters must be the thought that he died a Christian. He was the only stay and support of an aged mother and three sisters. His dying words were, “Tell them to meet me in Heaven is my last prayer.” Thus, he died calmly; peacefully and quietly.6

- Among the many gallant dead who fell amid the terrible carnage at Fredericksburg, Va., in the battle of December 13th, 1862, was Corp’l James D. McAlister, Company G, (Highland Boys) 24th Reg’t N.C.T., in the 21st year of his age, and son of Mr. and Mrs. James D. and Mary McAlister, of Robeson County, North Carolina. … In the battles before Richmond, at Malvern Hill, at Sharpsburg and at Fredericksburg, he mingled freely, and was conspicuous for his gallant bearing. At the latter battle, when his musket had become hot from its deadly fire, when the first shouts of victory ran along line, his brain was piered by a rifle ball, and thus he fell and died with the flag he had loved so ardently floating triumphantly beside him.

• I have today attended the burial of Nathaniel McArthur, son of Neill McArthur of Cumberland County, N.C. He died in the General Hospital in this city and was in the 39th year of his age. The commencement of hostilities found Fr. McArthur a successful practitioner of denistry in Thomasville, Georgia, where his exemplary Christian deportment made him respected by all who knew him. Heeding his country’s call for volunteers, he entered the ranks a private in the 50th Regiment of Georgia Volunteers, and placed himself by the side of hundreds of others, whose ambition from the first has been, not for rank or emolument, but to render efficient service in this time of their country’s need. In this honorable position Dr. McArthur was found, cheerfully performing all the duties of the common soldier, when he was detailed for duty as Apothecary in St. John’s Hospital, a charity supported by private contribution, and in the care of ladies of this city. From this he was transferred to the position of Wardmaster in the General Hospital. An how be labored in both depart-ments, by night and by day, until prostrated by a disease from which he had been the instrument of recovering so many of his comrades, the Medical staff and all connect-ed with the Hospitals will bear cheerful and cordial testimony. And those who were present in his last illness and dying moments can bear witnesst to that which will give his friends even more abiding consolation—that he died in the comfort of a reason-able, religious and holp hope of having made his peace with God through Jesus Christ our Lord

The Brigade of Gen. Clingman having been ordered here, by a kind Providence Lieut McArthur ow the 51st N.C. reached this city in time to see his brother before he died; and the Rev. Colin Shaw, a friend of Dr. McArthur in N.C., assisted by the Rev. Dr. Axon, Pastor of the Independent Presbyterian Church, ministered to him in his illness and officiated at his funeral. As witness to the self-denying duties of Dr. Mca., in the hospitals, I feel that I owe it to his memory to send you this imperfect notice of his service and death. It will, I trust, be a consolation to his aged parents to know that he received every attention that skill and friendship could render. His remains had for a funeral escort a detachment of troops detailed by Col. McKethan from the 51st N.C., and as the procession passed their encampment the regiment indiscriminately joined the procession and gathered round his grave in the beautiful Cemetery of Laurel Grove. C.F. McR.

A constitution not naturally strong gave way before the hardships incident to the life of a soldier, and he was seized with a lingering illness, from which he did not recover. He lived seven days after having undergone the painful operation of an amputation of the left leg. He was in the battles below Richmond and also in the battle of Sharpsburg, where he was taken prisoner—was sent to Ft. Delaware and kept there for three weeks, then paroled, sent to Richmond and immediately exchanged, and soon after joining his Company received the fatal wound at Fredericksburg. He was born in Scotland, Island of Jura, and was three years of age when his father and family emigrated to North Carolina in 1839. He was of the eighth generation of McDougalds in Jura, the first of whom belonged to the House of Lorn. His name and baptism are recorded on the Session Book of the Church of Scotland in Jura, where for three or four generations his ancestors served as Ruling Elders in that Church. He now lies in the land of his adoption, for which he thought proper to fight and die in order to protect it, four thousand miles away from the land of his sires and the place of his birth.

Escaping from prison, he made his way through Baltimore to his home in North Carolina, and rejoined the army in time to bear a part in the battles of July near Richmond. At Malvern Hill, as assistant surgeon, he atteneded upon the wounded within range of the enemy’s batteries. With the army of Virginia, he passed through the second battle of Manassas, and crossed the Potomac into Maryland. Reg’t, and at the time of his death was in the 24th year of his age. After having escaped unharmed through the perils of battles, he at last fell martyr in struggling for the most sacred rights of his country. During the period of his illness he was sensible of no pain, his body being paralyzed from the effect of his fatal wound. In the bloom of manhood, his premature death has been most deeply lamented, by a kind mother, a devoted sister, many friends and relatives, and by his brave associates in arms. … His last resting place is near the blood-stained field upon which he fell, where many of his brave associates are filling the hallowed soldier’s grave beside him. Many a sigh from the ruthless stranger and many a tear from an affectionate relative will be shed o’er the sacred mounds which so inadequately mark the hallowed spot where lay these gallant and honored heroes.

• Died at the residence of his parents, near Rockingham, Richmond County, on 3rd ult., after a protracted illness, Hiram Hailey, in the 30th year of his age. A worthy man is not more. The writer of this brief tribute knew him intimately, and he takes pleasure in testifying here, as he has done elsewhere, to the social and moral worth which secured for him whilst living, the confidence and esteem of all who knew him. Unlike too many of our young men, who, freed from the restraints of kindred and home, fall into the vices and dissipations of camp life, he preserved through his whole term of service a reputation for those high virtuous principles which will long endear his memory, not only to his wide circle of relatives and friends, but to his companions in arms, who in common with them now mourn his untimely end. Among the first to respond to the call of his country, he entered its service in June 1861. Through a period of about eighteen months he experienced many privations and endured many hardships. A member of Co. D, 23rd Reg’t, N.C.T., his first campaign was in the army of the Potomac, which, through rain, sleet and snow, through a long and dreary winter, in the face of the enemy and within sight of his Capital, stood a wall of defense to the South. Subsequently this army falling back he was with it on the Peninsula, and though not actually engaged was exposed to fire at the battle at Williamsburg. Still later he was with the troops who made that long and toilsome march into Maryland, where he participated in several bloody engagements. Shortly after his health failed and in January 1863 he reached home. For several long months his family and friends watched by his bedside with alternate hopes and fears, and all that love and friendship could accomplish was done, but all in vain. His work was done, and he was called to his reward. His manner of life for the whole period of his service, the patience and resignation he uniformly evinced during his painful and protracted illness, the composure with which he spoke of his approaching end, and about all the radiant smiles which illuminated his brown as he looked forward to the future, furnished to his bereaved family and friends the comfortable assurance that the summons that removed him hence proceeded from his Heavenly Father, who spake in a voice, though unheard by others, that was audible to him: “Well done, good and faithful servant; enter thou into the joy of thy Lord.”

Singletary was killed, the subject of this notice was severely wounded in the knee. His captain, seeing him bleeding and almost fainting, told him to go to the rear. His heroic reply was, “Captain, I can’t walk, but I can fight yet;”—and he did fight till a treat was ordered. His wound disabled him for the field and he was detailed in the Wilson Hospital. While there he cut his foot severely with an axe, and typhoid fever and erysipelas supervening, he died April 1, 1863, respected by all who knew him.

• Serg’t Joseph McRimmon of Company G, 18th N.C.T was killed at the late battle of Chancellorsville.
• Lieut. Jas. S. Knight, Private Keneth McKenzie and Private M.C. Morrison, fell upon the battlefield above Fredericksburg, Sunday morning, May 3rd, 1863, gallantly sustaining that cause for which they relinquished home, friends and ease. The country has lost three of its noblest and bravest defenders, and we some of our most loved and respected companions and fellow soldiers. All were members of the “Pee Dee Guards,” (Company D, 23rd N.C.T.)
• It has pleased Almighty God in the wise dispensation of his providence to take from our midst Capt. D.G. McRae of Company E, and 1st Lt. R.O. Hair of Company B, who were killed in the battle at Chancellorsville, Va., the latter on the 2nd and the former on the 3rd day of May while bravely fighting in the defense of their beloved country. Faithful in the discharge of his duties, and warm and generous in his sympathies, he had won the confidence of the officers and the esteem and affection of the company to which he belonged. To his friends of this young man it will be gratifying to lean that he fell as a true soldier at the post of duty.

When the desolations of this war shall have ceased and we who are spared to claim our homes in the good old North State return to the enjoyments of peace, our friend and companion in arms will be deeply missed. His sisters, who now fondly await his return to the home of their childhood will miss him—miss him, oh how sadly! But let them possess themselves in the garments of praise for the spirit of heaviness, and the oil of joy for mourning, and rejoice in the trust that he has been transferred from an army in a war-scarred wilderness to a place in the ranks of that innumerable host whose captain has disrobed death of his sting and the grave of its victory.
• John W. Lee, of Fayetteville, N.C. breathed his last on the bloody field of Chancellorsville, whilst battling for his country’s rights.
• Died in Columbus County, 14th May, Thomas J. Smith, a member of Company H, 51st Reg’t. • Died in Montgomery County, 29th April, Samuel Yarborough, aged 29 years, 3 months and 21 days. He was a consistent member of the M.E. • Died on May 22nd 1863 in the Chimborazo Hospital, Richmond, of typhoid fever, Preston H. Wooley of Montgomery County, N.C. The deceased was born the 7th day of August 1844. He had a frail constitution, but was too spirited and manly to claim an exemption from service. He volunteered in the 44th Regiment, reached camp on the Saturday previous to the advance of our troops on Newbern. Though wholly unaccustomed to military life and to hardships of any kind, he discharged all the duties devolving upon him promptly and faithfully, through the campaign from Newbern till after the falling back of our forces from Washington, and from the representations of many soldiers, they saw very hard times. When the brigade to which he belonged, reached Richmond, he was taken sick and sent to the hospital. In a very few days his father reached him and had everything done for him that was in the power of man to do, but all to no avail. Thus has perished another noble youth in defense of his country. Preston was generous, high-toned, intelligent and brave; and during his short service in the army won the admiration of his officers and the friendship of his associates. At home no young man could have been more popular. His youth overshadowed a life of great purity and usefulness. His remains were brought home by his afflicted father, and now quietly rest within sight of his home, while we trust his spirit is in the bright abodes of everlasting happiness.

• Peter S. Fortune, of the 16th Regiment died in General Hospital, January 10th.
• Sergeant D.H. Edwards, of Company G, “Chatham Boys,” 26th Reg’t N.C.T., was killed in the battle near Gettysburg, Pa. being another added to the long list of martyrs in the cause of Southern independence. The deceased was a son of Samson Edwards, Esq., of Chatham County, N.C.; he was in his 23rd year. At his country’s call he left school and volunteered in one of the first companies from Chatham County. He was a dutiful son and an affectionate brother; he was esteemed by all who knew him, and he discharged his duties faithfully for two years in the tented field amid many showers of iron hail and cannon’s roar. But alas! No more will the tap of the drum awaken him from his slumber; he has passed from the strife and confusion of war, and it is hoped that his spirit has soured to the celestial regions.

• Died in Richmond, 6th June, Lieut. Hinton J. Hudson, of Company C, 38th Reg’t N.C.T., in the 24th year of his age. Lieut. Hudson was wounded in the battles before Richmond, but being inspired by noble patriotism, he returned to his Company before he was thought to be able for service, and was very soon seized with typhoid fever, which proved fatal in a few days—during which time he had the undivided attention of his father, and for the last two days that of his bereaved wife. May his bereaved wife and friends be sustained by grace divine, and this dispensation of Providence be sanctified to their eternal good.

• Died at Seabrook’s Hospital, Richmond, Va., 17th May 1863, Mr. Noah R. Freeman, aged 27 years 3 months 7 days. The young gentleman, though quite young in years, was amongst the first to volunteer in defense of his country. Owing to bad health he was never in any battle until the last battle at Fredericksburg, Va., when he fell mortally wounded, and died in a few weeks. He was a respectful member of the Christian Church, and we have reason to believe, by his godly walk and upright conversations, that he had died in the faith which will save him in a better world than this. He leaves a wife and three small children to mourn the loss of an affectionate father and husband. Thus ends the life of this young Christian soldier. By R.W. Freeman

- Departed this life on the 1st inst. William Hester of Company D, 36th Reg’t N.C.T.
- Killed on the 3rd July, in charge at Gettysburg, Pa., Corpl. Thomas D. Clegg, of Company I, 32nd N.C.T. He volunteered in defense of his country in May 1861; his absence from home was but brief, he soon returned with a furlough on account of bad health; recovering from which, he hurried back to camp, endured many fatiguing marches, was wounded at Malvern Hill, again came home, and returned to come no more. He bade all adieu with the tears streaming down his cheeks. He professed religion in the 12th year of his age, joined the Methodist Church and was a true follower of the meek and lowly Jesus. He fills a soldier’s grave upon the far distant plains of Gettysburg.
- Died, in Hospital at Richmond, Va., Privates Andrew Cole on the 2nd April, D.B. Stedman 15th April, Kenneth H. McIver, 6th June 1863; and killed at the battle of Gettysburg, Pa., 1st July 1863, Private Louis M. Wicker, all of Company H. 30th Regiment N.C.T. They have been faithful soldiers in the army of the Confederate States for nearly two years. J.J. Wicker.

- Died of chronic diarrhea, July 24th, at the residence of his father, S.C. Harris, of Cabarrus County, N.C., Mr. Edwin Marshall Harris, in the 26th year of his age, of Company F, 57th Reg’t N.C.T.

- Malcom J. McDonald, a native of Cumberland County and member of Company D, 51st N.C.T., (member of ‘Scotch Tigers’) fell at Battery Wagner July 18th, 1863. Like many other young men, he has fallen in defense of our sacred rights, and poured out his life’s blood on the altar of his country. Yet it comforts us to hope, that though he is dead and his precious body left to mingle with the dust on the “wave-washed shore,” his happy unfettered spirit is not there, but gone to unite with the just around the Throne in glory.
- Died on the 3rd inst., from the effects of a wound received at Chancellorsville, William H. Hall, a member of Company K, 34th Reg’t N.C.T.
- Died on the 3rd July on the bloody hills of Gettysburg, Serg’t George W. Coggin, a member of Company K, 34th Reg’t N.C.T.
- No more noble sacrifice has been made to the cause of Southern Independence, than the life of Lieut. Jesse H. Person, son of Thomas A. Person, Esq., of Franklin County, N.C. who fell at the head of his company in the bloody charge of Lee’s Cavalry on the memorable field at Gettysburg. … A few days later, had he lived, he would have attained to the rank of Captain of Cavalry—though not yet 22 years old. In person he was the very picture of an officer of dragoons; being over six feet in height, straight, and faultless in form and proportion. In courage and bearing he was “every inch a soldier.” No wonder these distinguishing personal traits rendered him a conspicuous mark for the blows and shots of the enemy.
- Killed at South Mountain Pass, on the 4th of July, Corp’t William H. Flowers, aged 18 years and 9 months, son of D.F. Flowers. He belonged to the 59th Reg’t Company C, Robertson’s Brigade, Stuart’s Division. Thus has this awful war taken from us an intelligent industrious and brave boy, for which we never shall be repaid in this life, though I hope his loss may be for the good of his country and our eternal happiness.

• The sister of the gallant officer Major Owen N. Brown, of the 37th N.C. Reg’t, who lost a leg and was captured at Gettysburg, has received the sad intelligence of his death. A letter from an officer in General Lee’s army informs her that his own nurse, (Serg’t Wm. Goss, of his Reg’t, who remained to nurse him,) writes that after an illness of four days with a severe attack of fever, he died on the 24th of July.

• Of all those noble and gallant heroes who poured out their life’s blood so freely upon the bloody field of Gettysburg, none did so more gallantly discharging their duties, and none are more to be lamented, that 1st Lieut. Archibald W. McGregor, Company F, 18th N.C. Troops. Lieut McGregor, in the spring of 1861, quit a lucrative business and one that would have exempted him from allmilitary duty; at the first call to arms enlisted in the first company organized in his native county, Richmond. This Company (Scotch Boys) was gotten up by that noble gentleman and most efficient officer, Capt. Charles Malloy. Lt. McGregor served the first year as a non-commissioned officer, but at the re-organization of his regiment in 1862, his company showed their appreciation of his true worth and merit by promoting him to a Lieutenancy. He served his company in the battle of Hanover and in the seven days’ battles around Richmond, and on every occasion conducting him self with the utmost coolness and gallantry. After the battles of Richmond, he was prostrated by a violent attack of typhoid fever, from which his recovery was for a long time considered doubtful even by his attendant physicians, but after a long and painful illness he finally recovered tolerable health, but had never been restored to that bouyance and elasticity of former days. He rejoined his regiment at Camp Gregg about the middle of May. Soon afterwards the campaign opened. He was with his company throughout to Gettysburg, and when on the 3rd July the Light Division under command of Major Gen.
Trimble was ordered to charge, none responded with more alacrity than did Lt. McGregor. When the brigade had come within musket range, and exposed to a terrible fire of small arms and artillery, the line began to falter, Lt. McGregor rushed out in front of his company and waving his sword in the air, exclaimed, “Hurrah for Dixie! Follow me, boys. Let us show them what we can do;” he proceeded thus but a short distance when a minie ball pierced his left breast near the heart, and he fell and shortly afterwards expired. He fell in a stranger’s land. His remains were consigned to their last resting place of our noble Archie, but his memory will ever live green in the minds of those who knew him.

• Died in the General Hospital in Wilmington, July the 28th, in the 27th year of his age, Malcom W.
McRae, of Robeson County, N.C.
• Died the 2nd of July, from a wound received the 1st July, in the battle of Gettysburg, Pa., A.F. Muse, of Moore County, a private in Company H, 26th Regiment N.C.T., son of Jesse Muse, Esq., aged 21 years 6 months and 4 days. He was a moral character; he was a dutiful son and a kind brother. He embraced religion in the 17th year of his age and was baptized in the fellowship of the Baptist Church at Bethlehem;
he was of uncommon zeal to the cause of Christ; he spent his whole time while out of school, warning sinners to repent and flee the wrath to come. He was a student in the Academy at Jackson Springs. He was in feeble health, but notwithstanding, he returned home and laid aside his books and volunteered April 1862, in defense of his country. He fought through the battles around Richmond and in Eastern N.C.; he endured many fatiguing marches; he would often be seen after a battle on his knees praying for the wounded, and pointing them to the Lamb of God who taketh away the sins of the world; he would always remark in his letters to his parents that if he fell in the midst of the enemy not to grieve for him for he put his hope and trust in God; when He sees fit to call I am ready to go, yes, I am ready. In the first of the charge at Gettysburg, Pa. he received his death wound on the second day in the evening. He called a friend to sit down by him; he said “I am going to die, and I want you to promise me to write to my father, and tell him I was wounded, mortally, in the battle at Gettysburg, while fighting for the independence of my home and country, and I died near the battlefield; tell him I am not afraid to die, for all is well with me….

Farewell dear brother, we part awhile,
By death’ cold hand we sever,
But not without the blessed hope,
You are safe in Christ forever.

Far away from home you died,
In manhood’s bright and early bloom;
He was the idol of our hearts
While away and while at home.

Cease fond parents, cease to mourn,
Your boy to you can ne’er return,
But you to him may one day go,
Where streams of joy forever flow.

Weep not sister, weep no more,
Your brother’s warfare now is o’er;
Weep not brothers, weep no more,
His slumbers shall be disturbed no more.

Sister, M.J. Muse

• We deeply regret to announce the death of this gallant young officer, at Scottsville, Va., on Tuesday last, of wounds received that morning in an encounter with deserters whom he was endeavoring to arrest. Lieut Richardson Mallett was a native of this town, son of Charles P. Mallett, Esq., and nearly 23 years of age. One of six brothers in the army, he had been in the service since the beginning of the war. He left the University to join the Orange Light Infantry, (Company D, 1st N.C. Volunteers, Capt. Richard J. Ashe,) and served with that Company as 3rd Lieut. throughout the Peninsular Campaign. He established a reputation there for gentlemanly and soldierly qualities of the highest order—such as drew from General Hill one of the most marked compliments we ever read of any one. Since that Regiment was disbanded he has been 1st Lieut and Adjutant of the 46th N.C. Troops, Col. Edward D. Hall.

• Died on Sullivan’s Island, near Charleston, August 16, of congestion of the bowels, Dugald A. Bain, private of Capt. George Sloan’s Company I, 51st Regiment, aged 19 years.

• Died at Gettysburg, 17th July, of a wound received on 1st inst., at Corp’l Daniel Allen, of the 12th Reg’t, from Warren Co., 24. His brother died of a wound received at Malvern Hill, 1st July 1862, precisely a year before.

• Died at the Hospital, Richmond, May 09, John A. Weeks. This young man enlisted in the defense of his country early in the war, but survived all its dangers until the battle of Chancellorsville at which time he was mortally wounded, and breathed his last, after suffering intensely for several days. He was a member of the Church of Christ at Six Runs and had been for years. He was a brave soldier, and not only the Church but the country has met with a loss in the death of this gallant youth.

• Died at Union Point, Georgia, Aug. 05, of typhoid fever, Sgt. T.B. Tolar, of Capt. W.J. Tolar’s Company B, 10th S.C. Volunteers. Sgt. Tolar was wounded at the battle of Murfreesboro, and had just recovered when he was taken with fever, and only lived 6 days. He was a member of the Baptist Church; and was among the first with seven other brothers to respond to their country’s first call for troops. He had gained the esteem of his superior officers, also of his company. He leaves an affectionate wife and two children, also a large circle of friends to mourn his loss.

• Lieut. John Henderson McDade, Company G, 11th N.C. Infantry, fell in front of his company at Gettysburg, Pa., July 1st 1863, in the 33rd year of his age. He was a native of Orange County, N.C., the eldest son of James B. McDade, Esq., who for many years has held the office of Post Master at Chapel Hill. Lieut McDade was a graduate of the University, class of 1852, where he sustained a reputation for classical knowledge and modest and gentle demeanor that will never be forgotten by his classmates. He entered the military service at the very outset of the war as a private in Capt. Ashe’s Company from Chapel Hill, and

8 “Tell Col. Hall I was doing my duty. God’s will be done!” were the last words of Adjutant Richardson Mallett, the noble officer who fell by the hands of a gang of deserters in Virginia on the 25th ult., and whose loss is deeply deplored by a large circle of friends. A Lady of Chapel Hill writes: “Thurs. Aug.27th was one of the saddest days in my hearts’ calendar of mournful reminiscences. A telegram was received stating that Lieutenant Richardson Mallett, Esq. had fallen “mortally wounded at Bowling’s Landing, near Scottsville, Va., on Monday night 24th inst., at one o’clock in the morning, while engaged in the attempt to capture a deserter, and that his remains would be brought home for interment.”

was at the battle of Bethel, in the 1st N.C. Volunteers. After the time of service of the regiment had expired, he assisted in raising another company, Company G, 11th, N.C., and was elected 2nd Lieut., thereof afterwards becoming 1st Lieut. at the death of Capt. Jennings.

- We make the following extract from a letter relating the circumstances of the death of Lieut. Henderson C. Lucas, of Charlotte, Adjutant of the 11th N.C. Troops, and of a family well known here where his mother was born and his ancestors lived: --“He was wounded in the first day’s fight at Gettysburg and was taken immediately to Martinsburg, traveling three days and nights without a mouthful to eat or have his wounds dressed. There he was taken care of by kind strangers. It seemed so hard to die away from those that loved him so much, but he sent many messages and when told he could not live he replied that he was ready, that he was not afraid to die, that his full trust was in God.

He was shot down while bearing the colors of the 11th. When Col. Leventhorpe was wounded the regiment was thrown into some confusion; he seized the colors, (the color-bearers having all been shot down) and led the charge through a murderous fire until,—twenty paces in front of the lines, calling on the men to follow their flag,—he was shot down, but rose again, waving the colors and urging on the men. He was again brought down, but still supported the old Bethel colors with his left arm until the arm was shot through, and the colors were once more down. He then exclaimed—“Boys I have played out, go on to victory.” The colors were received by another, who was instantly shot down, and a soldier who stooped to examine his comrade also fell dead.”

After the battle of Chancellorsville, he made Maj. of the Regiment, and was killed on the first day of the Gettysburg fight. Died also, on July 1st (a cousin of G.M. Clark), Norman J. In a letter received by Mrs. Battle from the Rev. W. Burton Owen, Chaplain of the 17th Miss. Reg’t, prisoner at Gettysburg, he writes—“I conversed frequently and freely with your son in regard to the future. He delighted in religious services. He received Communion August 19th at the hands of the Rev. Mr. Willing of the Episcopal Church. Just before he died he said, “Jesus has taken all the fear of death away.” Precious words to the faithful mother who had trained his early feet in the way they should go! Precious words to all who mourn for the dark-eyed boy they shall see no more in this life! Thanks be unto God for his unspeakable gift, for them that sleep in Jesus will God bring with Him.

- Died in the General Hospital at Raleigh, on the 11th day of August 1863, John Monroe, son of Peter and Mary Monroe, of Moore County, N.C., aged 22 years 2 months and 28 days. He connected himself with the Presbyterian Church at Cypress on the 15th of October 1858, where he remained a regular member till the war broke out in 1861, and he felt it his duty to obey his country’s call. He volunteered his services in Capt. Kelly’s Company C, 35th N.C.T. He was in several engagements with the enemy and came through unhurt, but was a last seized with a violent sickness and only survived ten days, when he died. He died away from home among strangers, but he said he was willing to die and go to rest; nothing disturbed him in death only he wished to be brought to his home when he died. He was a dutiful son and affectionate brother. He leaves a father, mother, two brothers and three sisters, and a large number of friends and relatives to mourn his loss. He died without an enemy. His remains will be brought to his native home and interred in the burying ground where he spent many a happy day.

- Wm. M. Person, a member of Company H, 26th Regiment N.C.T., was wounded the first day of July at Gettysburg and died at Winchester, Va., the 3rd of August. He did his duty like a true man and patriot. Long and nobly did he battle for his country on the bloody field of Gettysburg. After the hottest of the fighting was over, he turned round to me with the blood streaming from his breast and said, “I am killed, tell my wife and children good bye for me.” I saw him next day and had hopes that he would recover, but the fatal bullet had done it work too well.

- John B. Martin, a member of Company H, 26th Regiment N.C.T., died at Winchester, Va., the 1st day of August, of wounds received at Gettysburg. He was an honor to his Company and Regiment, an honor to his country, a model soldier and a most worthy man.

- James A.N. McLeod, a member of Company H, 26th Regiment N.C.T., died near Gettysburg on the 3rd of July, of wounds received on the 1st. To those who knew him well nothing need be said. Father, mother, sister, friend, yours was a great sacrifice upon the altar of your country. The brave, gentle and unassuming soldier is gone, but you know where you may meet the true Christian again. I loved him almost as my own gentle, youthful brother, who fell and sleeps near him. The thunder of 300 cannon was their lullaby. They sleep in a strange land, but they will sleep sweetly there as if at home in their own land and church yard. A Friend.

His death was happy as was evidenced by a letter received by his afflicted parents, written just before he died, in which he said he was not long for this world, but bid his parents and brothers and sisters not to grieve on that account, as he felt that she should depart this life to live with Jesus, and urged them to meet him in that bright celestial world where they would live together where pain and sickness and parting will be known no more.

After serving the term for which that Regiment volunteered, he again volunteered as a private in the Carolina Boys. He was elected Lieutenant; afterwards he became Captain of the Company. Was in all the arduous service through which his company passed. Was recently detailed on special duty, and died of disease of the liver. It is unnecessary to say that he was a good and faithful officer. His promotion proved a sufficient testimony as to the esteem in which he was held by his comrades in arms.

• Yesterday afternoon a serious shooting affray occurred in front of the Libby prison, in which three members of the City Battalion were shot, one maimed for life and another mortally wounded. It appears that during the afternoon James P. Newsom, of Company C, 32nd N.C., was on guard in front of Castle Thunder, and had some words with a member of the battalion. Shortly after, Newsom, being off duty, but having his musket with him, was passing the parade ground of the City Battalion when some altercation occurred between him and Martin Gripp, Company F, in which Gripp struck him in the face. Newsom sprung back, and taking aim at his antagonist fired, the ball striking him in the breast and tearing off the flesh as far as the shoulder. The bullet then struck Private Forey, Company A, shattering his arm (which was amputated last night,) and finally lodged in the bowels of Private Richard Morris, Company D, inflicting a mortal wound. Newsom then ran a few steps, but was overtaken by two of the battalion and lodged in Castle Thunder. Richmond Dispatch, 3rd.

• Died at Knoxville, Tenn., June last, Alexander Gregg, of Company D, 58th Reg’t, from Watauga County.
• Died on David’s Island, N.Y., on the 7th Sept., 1863, 2nd Lieut., Marion J. Woodall, of Wake County, N.C., belonging to Company D, 26th N.C. Troops. … He was wounded in the battle of Gettysburg, in the left knee, and taken prisoner and carried to David’s Island, N.Y. The ball lodged near the bond and had to be cut out. Afterwards mortification ensued, and the leg was amputated; but the system had been so weakened that he could not survive, and he expired afterwards of two months of intense suffering. But his sorrowing widow and suffering little ones have the consolation to know that he died as he had lived for years before the war, a faithful Christian. Let this blessed consolation bind up their bleeding hearts and cause them to resolve to meet him in the Christian home.

- Mr. Simeon P. Phillips, a native of Moore County, N.C., and a private in the 8th So. Carolina Reg’t of Vols., fell near Chattanooga, Ga., on the 20th Sept. He was a consistent member of the Baptist Church for 10 years.

- The acting Coroner was called yesterday to hold an inquest over the body of Lauchlin McFayden, a private in Company D, 2nd Reg’t N.C. Cavalry, taken from the basin. A pass to visit Robeson County, N.C., was found on his person, dated Oct. 7th, 1863. The body was found in the canal, floating nearly opposite Messrs. Warwick & Barksdale’s mills. About $38 and a watch were found in the pockets of the deceased. As there were no marks of personal violence on the body no inquest was deemed necessary.

- Charles B. Murphy was killed in a recent engagement with the enemy. He was a member of Company A, 63rd N.C.T.,
- Died on the 11th August, in hospital near Petersburg, Cary N. Orr, aged 30 years.
- Died in hospital, at Richmond, Mr. J.S. Galloway, of Company A, 11th Reg’t. He was wounded in the battle of Gettysburg, and survived for two weeks. His brother, T.M. Galloway, of the 8th Florida Reg’t was killed in the same battle.
- Died at the residence of his father, in Robeson County, Sept. 27th, of disease Contracted in the army, Lieut. John G. Purcell, 37th Ala. Reg’t, eldest son of malcom Purcell, aged 28 years and 2 days. Lieut. Purcell formerly belonged to Gen’s Price’s command, and was with that brave old hero at the battles of Luka and Corinth. At the latter place he was taken prisoner but was soon exchanged and rejoined his regiment, which ws afterwards transferred to Gen. Pemberton’s command at Vicksburg. He was a while at Fort Pemberton, on the Yazoo River, and finally at Vicksburg during that ever memorable siege. Though suffering from disease of the spine and kidney, caused by a hurt received at the battle of Luka, he remained in the trenches forty-eight days and nights without relief, and never left his post till Vicksburg was surrendered to the enemy, when he was paroled and came home to die a natural death and to sleep with his kindred dust in the family cemetery. He had passed through many hard fought battles, and we had hoped now that we had seen his face, that his life would long be spared. But the ways of Providence are unsearchable. Our joy was soon turned to mourning. He had been spared on the field of carnage to fall a victim to typhoid fever. Still God is good; He permitted him to come home and receive the kind and tender offices which none but a mother and a sister can give. And though not a member of the church, he left us not without hope that the bloody scenes through which he had passed were the means of leading him to trust in a Saviour’s merits. In the early part of his illness he remarked that he could see no chance for him to recover, that his constitution was shattered and his strength was gone; but, he added: “I have prayed even in battle, and I believe my prayers have been heard and answered.” Never did a braver, nobler, purer or more generous patriot lay down his life on his country’s altar.

- Married on Tues. eve the 13th, at the residence of the bride’s mother, near Red Banks, Robeson County, … … … Reg’t N.C.T. & Miss Isabella Frances Cobb (grooms’ name is illegible, hidden by fold in newspaper)
- In the memorable charge of Lane’s Brigade on the bloody heights of Gettysburg, many brave and noble men immolated themselves on the altar of their country, none of whom did no more gallantly discharging their duties than Lt. J. Walter Stewart of Co. F, 18th, N.C.T., who fell at the head of his company on July 3rd 1863. Lieut Steward was a kind and generous friend, a brave and efficient officer, and an affectionate and dutiful son and brother. He, in commencement of this struggle, responded to the call of his country by volunteering in the first company from his native county of Richmond. He served as a non-commissioned officer for twelve months, and for his kind and amiable disposition, generosity and affability of manners, he was loved by both officers and men. He passed through several engagements unhurt, but he received a severe wound at Cedar Run, which disabled him for a shot time. Before he recovered from his wound he hastened to rejoin his companions. Soon after his return, the men showed their appreciation of his noble qualities, by promoting him to Lieutenant. In this capacity he served with his company in the faithful discharge of his duties, preserving all those noble virtues for which he was distinguished, and by which he won the confidence and admiration of all, until at Gettysburg the fatal missile ended his bright career. He fell severely wounded and lived only a few days. Having fallen into the hands of the enemy, two long months passed before his parents and friends received the painful intelligence of his death. He died far away from home with no kind sister to dress his wounds, and no affectionate parents to minister to his wants in his last hours. His spirit has taken its flight, but he will still live in the memory of those with whom he was associated while on earth. A Comrade.

His funeral was preached by the writer, October 12th, from Psalms 37:37. His remains were deposited in the family burying ground to await the voice of God at the last great day. - A TRUE MAN— Under this appropriate head the Charlotte Democrat published a letter from Absalom Myers, Esq., formerly a prominent citizen of Anson County, N.C., and now of Byhalia, Mississippi, to his son in Charlotte, in which he gives an account of his losses by Yankee raids to his plantation. They carried off a buggy, 6 mules, 3 horses, 2 colts, 100 hams, and 25 of his Negroes. The thieves robbed his Negro houses of money, clothing, knives, forks, spoons, etc. Mr. Myers closes his letter as follows:

  "I am informed that it is reported in North Carolina that I had taken the oath to the Lincoln Government. Should such a report reach you, you may give it the lie. Nothing short of death will induce me to submit to such degradation. Let property go, but let me preserve a good conscience and never be guilty of an act which might at some future day cause a son of mine to hang his head and blush at the mention of my name when I am gone. No, never. I have five sons in the Confederate army who I hope are discharging their duty manfully; the youngest of whom (the only one who has escaped sever wounds) wrote me a few weeks ago in such strong terms, professing his determination to stand up under all circumstances in defense of his country, that had I been the least wavering before in support of the southern cause, I would have been stimulated to renewed efforts for independence from the Yankee nation."

  The letter from the son, alluded to, shows that lie is worthy of such a father. It is written from the Mississippi army, and says:

  "I have heard of the treatment you received at the hands of the enemy, and I was not surprised, considering the previous outrages committed on citizens who have fallen into their power. I will be glad if you escape as well for the future. At any rate, whatever may befall you, I feel confident that you will always meet the scoundrels in the right spirit, with a determination never to bend one particle to them, whatever threats they may make. I learn it is reported in North Carolina that you have taken their accursed oath, but I know it is a lie. Let them burn and destroy; let property and life too, if necessary, go, so that honor and a good conscience is preserved. I fear that many have done this to save their property, but I would rather lose my life than believe such a thing of you. Don’t imagine that this report has troubled me at all further than a wish to find the author of it."

“I fear that that Mississippi is lost to us for a while, but do not despond. The enemy may overrun every southern State, still we will continue to fight them, and all will be well in the end. I am very anxious to hear from my brothers in the Virginia Army. Let us hope that if they have fallen it was while inflicting upon the robbers of Pennsylvania some at least of the misfortunes they have brought upon our home. I desire no more pleasant death than to die in defense of my country; and when I say this I mean it. The time for flowery expressions has passed away. At any hour or day we may be brought face to face with death, and so help me God I would not today take a furlough or a release from the army to save my life. Therefore, though I trust that they boys are safe, I shall be the better prepared to lose them if they have fallen while doing their duty.”

• Married on 16th inst., by D.C. McIntyre, Esq., H.R. Ivey of the 51st Reg’t N.C.T. to Miss Mary Eliza Ivey, all of Robeson County.
• Married at High Point, N.C., on the 15th inst., by the Rev. John S. Long, Lieut. William H. Borden, 50th N.C. Reg’t, and Miss Sue E., daughter of William B. Edmundson, Esq., formerly of Goldsborough, N.C.
• Near Culpeper Court House, Va., our Brigade, all North Carolinians, was ordered to charge, under a rain of balls whistling uncomfortably near our heads. The 59th led the way moving promptly at the command of its gallant Col. D.D. Ferebee, who before the regiment had advanced fifty years, was struck by a mini ball and severely, though it is hoped not dangerously, wounded. Though anxious to rejion his command after his wound was dressed, the surgeon would not permit it. In this charge Lieut. W.A. Benton, of Company A, was mortally wounded while leading his men against the foe. His numerous friends grieve much at his loss. Calm and collected in time of battle, the service has lost a good and gallant officer. Serg’t. J.C. Shine fell at the same time. The last of four brothers who have given their lives to the cause, and several were wounded.

Up to this time 27 of them have left us, to hear no more the bursting of shells and the whistling of mini balls: John Cranch was the first one to leave us. He died at Camp Mangum in January 1862. Crane, Richmond County, 18th June; Council Wallis, Guinea’s Station, 31st May; Corp. W.T. Tyson, wounds received at Gettysburg, July 1st. (signed) E.S. Garrett, Serg’t Company E.
• Died at General Military Hospital, Wilson, N.C., September 22nd, Private Asa J. Gunter, of Company D, 35th Reg’t of Chatham County. The subject of this notice met with his death in the following manner: While attempting at Nasolata (?) Depot on W. & W.R.R., to step on the morning train of cars which was conveying his Regiment to Weldon, he was thrown between the cars, his right leg dreadfully mangled and left foot was crushed. He was carried to the hospital at Wilson, where all human aid was rendered him but proved unavail-ing, and in a few hours he expired. … He was severely wounded in a desperate charge with his regiment at Malvern Hill on 1st July 1862, and fought bravely in other engagements with the enemy. …
He has a kind father, mother, brothers and sisters at home, and two younger brothers in the service; but they should mourn not as for one without hope, for he died as he had lived, a zealous patriot and Christian.

• Messrs Editors: Permit me to announce the death of Corp’l Neill McDonald, of Company H, 26th N.C.T., he having fallen in the battle of Bristow Station, Va., on the 14th October 1863. He was a dutiful and brave soldier, beloved by all his comrades. He was a native of Moore County, and enlisted at Carthage on the 3rd June 1861 for twelve months. About the first of March 1862 he re-enlisted for two year or during the war. He fell while charging the enemy’s lines behind the railroad. We feel that we have lost one of our best comrades. He was a pious and Christian-hearted soldier, and I hope it at rest where the sound of cannon and the rattle of musketry will be heard no more. A Friend.

• We are deeply pained, but not surprised at the unwelcome intelligence which we publish this morning. Dr. David M. Wright, of Norfolk, was hung by order of Abraham Lincoln, at Norfolk on Friday last, about meridian. A Federal surgeon, who reached City Point on the truce boat Saturday, says he witnessed the execution, and that the Doctor died with heroic firmness.

We had no personal acquaintance with Dr. Wright, but those who know him long and intimately speak of him as a high toned honorable gentleman, courteous in his bearing, honest in all his dealings, benevolent to the highest degree, and universally respected and beloved. He leaves an interesting family, who has no pang of regret, save the severance of that tie which had so closely linked them to husband and father in life. He died a martyr to the noble cause of Southern independence, for in slaying his insulter, he did only what the noble Jackson did at Alexandria, and what mother others have done in other portions of the South overrun by the cruel and insolent oppressor. He was a native of Eastern North Carolina, but had resided in Norfolk for twelve years, perhaps longer. Petersburg Express, 26th.

• Among the many noble sons of the South that have given their lives to be sacrificed on the altar of their country, none are perhaps more worthy of their names being immortalized that Privates James M. Sheriden and Alson G. McCoy, Company G, 26th N.C.T., who fell in the destructive charge at Bristow Station, October 14, 1863. … Sheriden leaves a tender wife and four little daughters to mourn their great loss; to them they almost sole human help. We commit them to the care of Him who has promised to be a husband to the widow and a father to the fatherless. McCoy, more fortunate, leaves an affectionate father to sorrow for the early death of his cherished son; but knowing his devotion to the cause of the South, we feel assured that he will give him up without a murmur.
• Killed in the battle of Gettysburg, Jul 1st 1863, Private Lemrie Wicker, Company G, 26th N.C.T., in the 34th year of his age. He was a native of Chatham County, N.C., son of the late Benjamin Wicker. He was among the first to volunteer after Lincoln’s proclamation. Thus has fallen one of the south’s best soldiers—fighting the enemies of his country and home. In him his parents have lost an excellent son, his wife and children a true and loving husband and father, and North Carolina, one of her best sons.
• Killed in Hospital at Gettysburg, Pa, July 3, 1863, Sgt. W.P.[Preston] Kirkman, of Company G, 26th N.C.T. aged 23 years. He was a native of Chatham County, N.C., son of Dr. George Kirkman. He fell mortally wounded July 1, and died the 3rd. … The write of this had been a playmate of his in their boyhood days. He was kind and affectionate to all his playmates, and especially to his fellow soldiers. No one who knew him could say aught against him, for none could know him but to love him. If there ever was a man more blessed with the meekness and patience of that good old patriarch Job, it was Sgt. William P. Kirkman. Never was he heard to murmur, no matter what his trials were. On our march to Pennsylvania he was our Orderly; thus he was up nearly all night dividing the rations and attending to other duties of his office, and I have known him to walk over the camp carrying a small piece of meat and bread that was left to see that each man had his share. He leaves a kind father, mother, sisters and brothers to mourn his loss, but blessed be God, they need not mourn as those that have no hope. W.A.L. [perhaps William A. Lineberry]
• Corp’l Neill A. Wilkes of Company D, 2nd N.C. Cavalry, fell mortally wounded in the breast and abdomen, in the engagement near Jack’s Shop, near Orange Court House, Sept. 23rd 1863, and died Sept 24th 1863.
• Departed this life, on the night of the 23rd July, at Petersburg, Va., of typhoid fever combined with gangrene-ous poison, Samuel C. Hackney, in the 31st year of his age. Deceased was a member of Company A, 5th Reg’t, N.C.T. He went with our army into Maryland, September 1862, was taken prisoner and sent to Philadelphia, where he remained until December, he was then exchanged and sent to Petersburg, was there appointed Steward in the Fair Ground Hosp., where he remained until the time of his death. It was not the privilege of his parents, brothers or sisters to witness his last moments or administer to his necessities, but it is gratifying to them to know that through the kindness of his many friends he received every attention. He had never made an open profession of faith, but we have strong hope that God had brought a change in his heart and he now mingles his voice with myriads of saints in ascribing the praise of his salvation to our heavenly Father. … He was beloved among his brothers and sisters, the pride of a father and the idol of a fond mother’s heart.
• Killed on the bloody field of Fredericksburg, on the 13th December, 1862, Chester Swindell, of Bladen County, N.C., and a member of Company K, 13th Regiment, N.C.T, aged about 23 years. … He had been a member of the Presbyterian Church for about 8 years. He fell while making a charge on the enemy. He lies near Fredericksburg in some lonely and sacred spot with several of his comrades in the same grave. Sleep, Chester! No more shell the tattoo or the reveille arouse you, but the great trumpet shall wake you in common with all mankind in the morning of the resurrection. We can go to him but he can not come to us. Archie.

Montgomery, of Montgomery County, of Company F, 44th Reg’t, N.C.T, Kirkland’s (formerly Pettigrew’s) Brigade whilst gallantly leading his company in a charge against the enemy, and heroically encouraging them by pointing to their colors flying in their front; by a minie ball penetrating his forehead just above his left eye, killing him instantly; in the 27th year of his age. … His remains were grossly outraged by his murderers on the battlefield, by robbing him of his arms and other property, and stealing from his finger a ring which he had playfully taken from a friend when last at home. He sleeps in the cold embraces of death under the soil of Virginia, far from his home and friends and the scenes of his youth; but he will ever live in the hearts of his relatives and friends, who will fondly cherish his memory.

- Killed in the battle of Bristow Station, October 14, 1863, Private James H. Parker, a member of the Goldsboro Rifles, Company A, 27th Reg’t N.C. Infantry. He was the son of Mr. James R. He served with his company in all its subsequent campaigns, with the battles of Sharpsburg, Md., (where he was severely wounded,) Fredericksburg, Va., and seven other engagements of less note in each of which he greatly distinguished himself for his unflinching bravery. He gave up his life upon the ill-fated field of Bristow, where with his comrades he had breasted a perfect storm of shot and shell unhurt, until the order was given to fall back; in doing so, he lingered to assist in conveying from the field the body of his Captain, who was mortally wounded, and while then engaged, the fatal bullet pierced his head, and he yielded up his life to God who gave it. He is gone, and braver man has not fallen during this wicked and relentless war which is now being waged against us by our vandal foes of the north.

He was appointed 1st Serg’t for gallantry in the battle field, which post he filled to the complete satisfaction of his company. The company sympathizes most deeply with his bereaved parents, brothers and sisters.

• Killed by a deserter, in the northern part of this (Cumberland) county on the 20th inst., Daniel James Colvin, in the 47th year of his age. All the circumstances of this lamentable event are most sad and painful. Mr. Colvin was a most excellent and worthy man in every relation of life, a high minded and honorable gentleman, a pure patriot, devoted to the cause of his bleeding and suffering country. He was always ready to go where duty called, regardless alike of his own personal safety and interest. His fidelity to every trust committed to him, his zeal in every good cause in the community, and his efficiency as a member of the Home Guard, made him an object of dread and hatred, to the lawless and deserters around him. And on the day of his lamented death it is supposed he fell a victim of this hatred and revenge. He and two others were sent to guard a certain point, when two deserters approached within some twenty paces before either party discovered the other. At the word halt, both parties leveled their guns and fired, all but Mr. Colvin, who was shot and instantly died. In his death the community has suffered an irreparable loss. Mr. Colvin, though not a professor of religion was a man of unblemished character, exemplary in all his walk and from the interest manifested on the subject of religion leaves those who knew him best in hopes that he was not unprepared for this solution and awful change. He leaves a bereaved wife and two small children

Reg’t. … He served his company for nearly ten months, was captured by the enemy at Sharpsburg, and remained with them more than three months. During which time he suffered much from sickness; before he finally recovered. He hastened to rejoin his companions, where he was always ready to obey orders. In the memorable battle of Chancellorsville he received a severed wound in the right arm, it was amputated and he was conveyed to Richmond, where he took the typhoid fever. His father on hearing the sad fate of his son, went immediately after him and brought him home, where he survived only a few days. Milton in early life sought and found the pearl of great price; he joined the church at the age of 15, and lived up to the duties of a meek and humble Christian, and died a true soldier of the cross.

• Died of chronic diarrhoea, at his own residence in Randolph County, 26th Sept., 1863, Wilbern Russell, aged 27 years, of Company I, 5th Reg’t. N.C.T. For twelve months he had been in the service of his once happy country, and nobly discharged his duties. After a short stay in the army he was sent home on a sick furlough; after resting a while he returned to camp and participated in the battles of Sharpsburg, Boonsboro and Chancellorsville, at which time he was stricken down with disease and taken to the hospital in Richmond where he remained a few weeks and obtained a furlough and returned home. After lingering 2 months and 11 days he peacefully yielded himself into the hand of his Saviour. He was a member of the M.E. Church South, holding his membership at Eleazer, discharging his Christian duties as a soldier of the Cross. During his sick-ness he often longed to die and be at rest. Thus he has exchanged the hardships and suffering of a soldier’s life for the harp, crown and peaceful mansions of eternal bliss, where he has joined his little angel child who had gone before. He had volunteered 1st February, 1862, and with unwavering fortitude endured the hardships of war for two long and weary years. During that time he was never known to shirk from duty or shrink from going to battle with the enemy whenever an opportunity offered. To do his duty and whole duty was ever a noble characteristic of his heroic soul. … But, alas! that valiant spirit has departed, and in his death the community of which he was a member has been deprived of a worthy citizen, the country of a true patriot, and his family of a zealous friend. His war has ended and now he lies cold and motionless, “a picket off duty forever.” No more will he hear the musketry’s shrill rattle or cannon’s booming roar.

Johnston, well known for many years as the Rector of St. Paul’s, Edenton, and graduated at the University of North Carolina in 1859 bearing away the highest honors of his class. In June 1860 he was married to Miss Nannie Taylor, daughter of Dr. Charles E. Johnson of Raleigh, and in the same month selected to be one of the Tutors in the University. When the war broke out he forthwith volun-teered and served with the Orange Light Infantry of the Bethel Regiment. He was subsequently promoted to a Lieutenancy, in the 28th N.C. Troops, and then to the office of Assistant Adjutant General of Lane’s Brigade in the Army of Northern Virginia. In June 1862 he was made prisoner near Hanover Court House, Virginia. Though he had escaped by swimming the river, he returned to the enemy and gave himself up, that he might share and perhaps alleviate the captivity of his men. He was removed to Sandusky, Ohio, and the severities of his imprisonment there laid the foundation of the disease under the effects of which he gradually wasted away. After his return he was never fit for the field—though he was in the action at Fredericksburg, and in the summer of 1863 felt compelled to resign his commission. He returned to Chapel Hill, and after months of declining health sunk into the grave. He was a noble character, a Christian gentleman, warmly beloved by family and friends.

He was in the Pennsylvania campaign, and on the return of the Army he was taken prisoner at the Patomac, on the 14th July, near where Gen. Pettigrew was slain; was sent to Frederick City, where, after four days fasting and marching, he was kindly entertained by the citizens. After spending one month in Baltimore jail he was sent to Point Lookout, and there on the inhospitable shore of the Chesapeake he lingered and suffered of chronic diarrhoea and affection of the lungs till his death. Thus ended the short career of a youth who was dearly beloved by his friends and esteemed by all who knew him.

He was always at his post of duty, willing to do anything he was called to do without a word or murmur. In his death the community has lost one of its brightest ornaments and his country one of its bravest defenders.

A letter to his sister, of 24th of January 1864 reads: “We have joined Maj. McRae’s Battalion, and I like the Major; he is all right, sure. This leaves me well. I had the best breakfast you ever saw of pork and meal without sifting. You may be sure it went well after fasting 36 hours. We are in Translyvania County, N.C., which is a bad country for forage. There is no Tithe here and we are not allowed to impress, so we fare but common; but I am willing to live any way for Independence and freedom.” Thus he closed the last letter he wrote previous to his sickness. J.A.M.

- A few days ago, as the 17th N.C.T. was passing Rocky Mount, a soldier of that Regiment, Hogans, of Edgecombe County, was travelling home, on foot, musket in hand, by moon-light. As he journeyed he was startled by the sight of a dark object, like a bear, drinking at a branch which crossed the road. Cocking his gun, at a distance of about 70 yards, he carefully watched the movements of the animal, which, after stooping over the water for a few moments, partly rose and started forward. The soldier fired with deadly aim. The animal fell and struggled convulsively on the ground. Afraid to approach lest its powers of doing mischief should not be exhausted, the soldier ran to the house of a Mr. Brooke, and begged him to arm himself with an axe, and aid in securing the booty. With cautious steps and weapons ready for instant use, they approached the supposed bear; when, instead of that beast, there appeared to their horrified eyes the body of a soldier, welter-ing hin his blood, quite dead! The right hand of the corpse tightly clasped a tooth-brush, which no doubt he was using when the fatal ball took effect. The ball entered near the back-bone, and passed diagonally through the body, coming out in front. The victim had staggered forward across the branch, and was lying on his face. Papers in his pocket showed that he was a member of the 66th Regiment, named Ballard, of Wayne County, and that he was on his way to Wilson, on furlough, to collect $180 there due him. An examination of the case was had before two magistrates, who discharged the involuntary man-slayer without bail. He evinced deep distress at the consequences of his unfortunate mistake.

- Died near Liberty Mills, Va., 6th January, Hardin Hollyfield, of the 18th Regiment.
- Died, February 22nd, 1864, of typhoid pneumonia, in hospital at Smithville, N.C., Malcom Culbreth, in the 43rd year of his age. The deceased was born in Robeson County, where he lived an exemplary life and an ornament to society, until he felt it his duty to obey the call of his bleeding country, when he bid adieu to and left the embrace of weeping friends, determined never to sheathe the sword until her freedom and independence should be established. For more than fifteen years he was a consistent member of the Methodist Episcopal Church. The sweet and saving grace of the Lord Jesus was vouchsafed to him in early life, and from the time he united himself with the people of God he adorned his profession by the daily exhibition of genuine faith in his walk and conversation. As the end drew near his confidence in God remained unshaken, and he calmly sank to rest; pillowing his head upon the bosom of the blessed Saviour. He leaves a mother, sister, and brother, and also a large circle of friends, to mourn his irreparable loss.

- Died in 2nd Corps Hospital at Orange Court House, Va., April 4th, George Stoves, of Company C, 45th Reg’t of Guilford County aged 24 years.
- Died in Pennsylvania, 11th July, 1863, Thomas Ivy, youngest son of Elisha and Anna Hancock, aged 19 years and 2 months. He was a member of Company I, 5th N.C.T., and was mortally wounded the 1st day of the battle of Gettysburg, from which he suffered the most intense pain for ten days, and died while physicians were amputating the broken and shattered limb. Thomas had been in service 12 months, during which time he had been a prisoner of war for six months. After having been paroled, he returned to his home in Randolph County, and there remained until exchanged, at which time he cheerfully submitted to the order to return to his company, which he did immediately, as a good soldier. … Thomas was a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church, and although he died far from home, (in an old barn,) with no kind mother or sister near to smooth his aching brow, he said it was hard to die away there and be buried as he would have to be; but said he was no better than many others that had to share the same fate; said he was ready and willing to die, and was enabled to sing a hymn of praise just before he died, in which some of his brother-soldiers joined. He has left parents, sisters and two brothers in the army.

Carver’s Creek May 4th 1864. James McKethan, Esq., My Dear Sir: With a painful heart I have received the sad intelligence of the death of your noble son, the brave and gallant J. McKethan of the 8th N.C. Reg’t. Having been associated with him since the beginning of this unhappy strife, I can testify to his high personal worth as a brave and gallant soldier, and his noble and manly virtues. He was kind and generous, and it can truly be said of him, “none knew him, but to love him”—he was beloved by both officers and men of this command, and though his body be committed to the silent grace, he still lived: —he lives within our hearts who were with him so long and knew him so well; long will we cherish his memory with freshness there, and his noble and shining examples will have their efficacy. Amidst your sorrows for the loss of so noble and worth a son, it will doubtless prove a balm to your bereaved and bleeding heart to reflect that it was while in the faithful discharge of his duty, leading his Company at the battle of Plymouth, that he fell mortally wounded, with his “sword by his side and his face to the invader.” I regret very much, that I cannot be with you at this time; duty imperatively demands my return to the army. With heartfelt sympathy, my dear sir, I am, respectfully yours, L.R. Breece, Capt. Company E, 8th N.C. Regiment.

Died in Harnett County, 29th of April, Mrs. Catharine Holder, wife of Mr. Ithra Holder, Company H, 50th N.C.T. For many years this excellent woman was a consistent member of the Methodist Episcopal church, and the frequent marked pages in her Bible will long attest where she gained that instruction which alone can render life a blessing and make death easy and really the consummation of all the truly pious Christian desires. She was one who feared the Lord; in death as in life she illustrated the true Christian character. She leaves a dear husband and two children to mourn their loss. Sad will be this announcement when it reaches her dear husband. Oh, weep not, for her; your loss is her eternal gain! Weep not for her, but prepare to meet thy God; let the vacant seat in Spring Hill Church admonish the living that they too must die. S.J.O.

Died in Moore County, at the residence of Gen. W.D. Dowd, 4th May, of consumption, Joseph T. Phillips, aged about 45 years, one of our worthiest and most respected citizens, whose memory will long and affectionately be cherished by his friends and relatives. Truly may it be said of him, that he was one of the noblest works of God, an honest man.

The reported death of Lt. Col. John T. Jones, of the 26th Reg’t N.C.T., (formerly Vance’s) has been confirmed. He was well known to the writer as a young man of more than ordinary promise, and among the first of those choicer spirits who left the University of North Carolina and entered the ranks as privates in a Company from Chapel Hill in April 1861; was in the battle of Bethel; after serving out the period for which they had volunteered, youn Jones immediately entered the army again, and has closed his brief but honorable career; by a sacrifice of his life for his country. He was a young man of high moral character, was a candidate for confirmation in the Episcopal Church; yielded to the decree of God not only willingly, but, as a by-stander remarked, cheerfully, saying, “It’s all right.”

We are also sorry to learn that Edward Jones, son of Dr. J.B. Jones of Chapel Hill, who was wounded and captured on the 6th, has lost his leg above the knee. He father has gone one for him.

Died in Hospital at Richmond, on the 17th May 1864, Capt. Willis B. Pope, of Company E, 51st Regiment N.C.T., who fell mortally wounded in a charge near Drewry’s Bluff, Va., on the 16th inst., aged 20 years. Capt. Pope was from Robeson County and the only son of J.T. Pope, Esq. At the beginning of this struggle he was a cadet at the Charlotte Military Institute, N.C., but like many others, when he heard that the foe was treading the soil of Virginia, he deserted his Alma Mater and chose the tented field—participated in the engagement at Yorktown—a short time after which he was elected 1st Lieut. in a company from his own county. … He fell with his face to the foe, proudly leading his company on to victory. It may be some consolation to his father, mother and only sister to know that he was not afraid to die, as he so expressed himself to me a short time after being wounded. Yours, N.

• Died in Orange County, April 7th Minnick Miller, Company D, 58th Regiment, aged 36 years.
• Died at Point Lookout, Md., of chronic diarrhoea, Feb. 29, Wm. A. Kilpatrick, Co. D, 34th Reg’t, aged 23.
• Died in Cedar Creek District, Cumberland Co., Mr. Jeptha Hall, aged 29, a soldier of the Confederate Army.
  A letter from a surgeon in Lane’s Brigade says in reference to the death of this gallant young officer, who but a few months ago left the Lexington Military Institute for active service in the field: “Lieut. Charles T. Haigh fell on the evening of the 12th ultimo, while gallantly leading his company (Co. B, 37th N.C.T.) in charging a yankee battery. A member of his company reports that he was shot through the head, the ball entering above the right eye and coming out of the left and back part of his head. Our men were unable to hold the ground on which he fell, and consequently I was unable to secure his remains. “Col. Barbour had no officer whom he esteemed more highly than Charlie, and although he had been with us but a short while, he had won the esteem of every officer and man in the regiment. His conduct was such in the battle of the 12th as not only to elicit the commendation of officers and men of his own regiment but his gallantry was such as to attract the attention of General Lane who complimented him highly for his bravery and efficiency.”
• Died in Chimorazo Hospital, Richmond, on the 24th of May, of a wound received in the battle near Drewry’s Bluff, Lieut. Junius A. Liles, Company B, 31st Regiment, son of James A. Liles, Esq., of Anson County, aged 27 years. In the camp, on the weary march, on the battle-field, where death rode on every breeze and the ground grew red with blood, his cheerfulness, vivacity, coolness and bravery never left him. He died as he had lived, a patriot and Christian gentleman, his last thoughts being of his home and his country, and his last words, “Tell my mother I am willing to die, and have done my duty.”

• A private dispatch received here yesterday brought the melancholy news that our townsman Capt. Frank N. Roberts had been instantly killed in the battle near Petersburg on Saturday afternoon. He leaves a family and many warm friends. He had been in the army since the beginning of the war, having been an officer of the Lafayette Company in the Bethel Reg’t. After the expiration of the term of service of that regiment, he raised a company in the 56th. The entire community deplores the loss of a kind hearted and enterprising citizen.
• Killed near Gaines’ Farm, Virginia, by the enemy’s sharp-shooters, on the 12th inst., William T. Ledbetter, aged 16 years and 3 months, a member of Company I, 51st Reg’t N.C.T., formerly of Petersburg, Va.
• Died at the hospital in this town, on the 19th inst., J. Haladay, of Company A, 10th N.C. Battalion. He leaves a wife and three children in Randolph County.
• Lieut. James B. McCallum died on the battlefield of Drewry’s Bluff on the 16th May, from wounds received 4 hours previous. He was a native of Robeson County, 24, Lieut. Company D, 51st N.C. Reg’t, a graduate of the University of N.C., and for a short while a student in Columbia Theological Seminary, but he felt as if he was needed in the awful strife for independence and he left the peaceful walls of the Seminary to take his stand with others of North Carolina’s brave sons to battle for his loved country. And nobly did he do his duty; he participated in the fight at Goldsboro, the assault of Battery Wagner, and the bloody battle of Drewry’s Bluff from whence his beloved God saw fit to call him from such scenes of blood and carnage to a bright celestial home above…. Lt. McCallum was young, in the pride of his manhood days, and intended following his chosen profession (that of a Presbyterian Minister,) when peace should return to our troubled country, and with such a prospect of future usefulness it indeed seems strange he would be taken and others left… When he was last at home he selected a spot to be buried if he should be killed during the war—a beautiful place that in his childhood’s happy days was a favorite playground. Many a time has his happy joyous, ringing laughter rung out from beneath the same trees that now shade a hero’s grave; often in days gone by have his little feet bounded over the sod that now presses so heavily and mournfully upon his manly breast.
• Washington Hall, son of James Hall, Esq. of Bladen County, died 7th May, 1864, aged 21 years, 8 months and 18 days. The subject of this notice volunteered in June 1861, and was a member of Company A, 18th Reg’t N.C.T. He took part in the many battles and hardships of the 18th Reg’t from its organization to the retreat from Gettysburg, when he was taken prisoner at Falling Run, July 14th 1863, and was carried to Point Lookout, was paroled and came home March 12th 1864. During his long sickness he was patient, calm and resigned, trusting in his Redeemer. He died in peace and triumph, preserving consciousness to the very last verge of dissolution. He was a dutiful son and an affectionate brother.

- Died in the Field Hospital, near Chester, Va., June 2nd 1864, from a mortal wound received that morning in a charge of the enemy’s rifle pits, Dr. John H. McLean, eldest son of Daniel H. McLean, Esq., of Robeson Co., and 1st Lieutenant of Company G (“Highland Boys,”) 24th Reg’t N.C.T. in the 27th year of his age. Nature had endowed Dr. McLean, in a high degree with the elements of the good and successful physician. Gifted with a mind remarkably quick and accurate in his perceptions, with a heart of tenderness and sympathy for the afflicted and suffering, with a genial candid open disposition which gained him the confidence and good will of all who knew him, and with a natural taste and fondness for the study and practice of his profession, he bid fair to attain to a high degree of usefulness and prominence in after life.

  The war broke out about the time he was completing his medical course, and like many other brave and generous youths, he laid aside his books and sacrificed the labor, time and money he had expended in acquiring a knowledge of his profession, together with a bright and hopeful prospect of success, and volunteered a private in the ranks.

  During the summer of 1861, the 24th Reg’t was attached to Gen. Floyd’s command in Western Virginia, and suffered severely from sickness. Dr. McLean was details as Assistant Surgeon in the Hospital, where it is believed his skill, his patient action and faithful nursing were the means of saving the lives of several of the men whom the regular surgeon had given over to die. Such were his care and solicitude for the sick that, as the writer has been credibly informed he did not lie down to rest or sleep for the space of three weeks. But his self denying labor of love received its reward. His companions in arms appreciated his worth, and at the reorganization of the Regiment they gave him a substantial token of their regard, by choosing him without solicitation on his part 2nd Lieutenant in his Company, which position he held until the Autumn of ’62, when the 1st Lieut. resigned and he was promoted to that position.

  He passed unharmed through the battles around Richmond and at Sharpsburg, besides several other engagements. On the morning of June 2nd, he commanded a detail from his Regiment of about one hundred men, in a charge on the enemy’s rifle pits a few miles below Petersburg. Early in the action he was pierced through the hip by a minie ball, and died in about six hours. His remains were brought home, and now sleep in peace in the family cemetery by the side of a beloved sister.

• Killed on the 16th June, near Petersburg, Va., contending with the enemy, Private Robert Graham, Company D, 61st N.C.T., while gallantly defending his country from our insulting foe. Mr. Graham was from Robeson County, N.C. He was a true soldier and a perfect gentleman; was among the many who left their homes with-out any one to care for them. He participated in the defense of Charleston under General Geauregard. Since then he has been a great portion of the time in Virginia. He was in the fight at Cold Harbor, Bermuda Hundreds and Drewry’s Bluff. Then the enemy moved over to the South side, and in his advance on the town was met by our forces, among who was our lamented friend. It is useless to say anything more about his qualities as a soldier, as his comrades can testify to his daring and unflinching disposition in presence of the enemy. He won the confidence of his officers as well as his comrades in ranks. He was shot in the head, which caused almost instantaneous death. He leaves many friend and relatives to mourn their irreparable loss. But an all-wise Providence has seen fit to remove him from us, and we console ourselves with the hop that he is transferred to a better world, where we hope to meet again.

The age of our lamented friend was 21 years 7 months and 21 days. This gallant youth, hero and patriot left a loved home in the opening of the war, and connected himself with a company of Col. Orr’s Reg’t of S.C.V, which was that that time stationed on Sullivan’s Island near Charleston, S.C. From thence he went with his Reg’t to Va., passing home and friends without a call, and participated in all the battles in which his Reg’t was engaged and after the fatigue and hardships of war for more than three years, claiming everything near and dear to himself and all of us—alas! But nevertheless true—he received the wound of which he died …. Malcom now sleeps in the soldiers cemetery near the hospital in which he died, where the hands of veteran comrades have kindly laid him. Peace to his ashes and comfort to his bereaved father, brothers and sisters.

Thus has fallen another of the Montgomery noble sons. Well may North Carolina be proud of such a son, and his name shine high on the page of history. Never did a nobler youth fall in defense of his country. He was the third brother that has fallen in the last twelve months. His first brother, Sgt. K.J. McLeod, fell at Gettysburg, 1st July 1863, and his next, Capt. Neil C. McLeod, fell on the 23rd May, and then he fell on the 2nd June—three of the noblest brothers that ever were in the Confederate service. • Lt. Lalister M. White of Sampson County, N.C., was an intelligent, cultivated young man; modest, gentle, unobtrusive. He entered the army as a private and for a long time persisted in refusing to hold offices which his comrades wished to confer upon him. At last they induced him to accept a Lieutenantcy and he was first Lieutenant at the time he was killed. He had passed through many hard fights and was killed on the bloody field of Spottsylvania, May 12, 1864. No doubt this young man, like many others who have fallen during this dreadful war, would have been largely useful if he had lived, but his sudden death reminds us of the uncertainty of our future in the world and admonishes us to prepare for the next. Lt. White had not made any public profession of religion. A few days before he was killed, I approached him and told him I had been praying for him some time. With a good deal of emotion he thanked me for the interest I had felt in his and told me he was interested for his own soul. The pasture, in which his scomrades found him three days after he fell (his hand under his head,) led them to think that he may not have died instantly. The veteran soldier long accustomed to the sound of musketry and artillery mayhave collected his thoughts and prayed, and calmly and trustingly given up his spirit to Him who said: “Come unto me all ye that labor and are heavy laden and I will give you res.” Among the many friends that I have lost by this cruel war, few were dearer to me than Lal White. A.D. Betts, Chaplain 30th N.C.T.

- Died on 13th Aug., in Hospital at Wilmington, of typhoid fever, John H. Moffitt, son of H. & R. Moffitt of Randolph County, and member of Company B, 2nd Battalion. … Thus has passed away the third and last son of a happy family. John was but a boy; but his heart throbbed with patriotic zeal, and he longed to be among the brave defenders of our loved South; but his father having lost his two elder sons, doubtless grieved that the last, this cherished flower, should go forth and share the fate of the others. He went, not to meet death on the battle field, but in the crowded hospital. He sleeps in the silent grave as true a martyr to the cause of liberty as he who falls at the cannon’s mouth. He was a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

• Mrs. Darius Robinson11 is an old lady, resident of this county. She is aged, and primarily in quite humble circumstances—indeed we might say poor. When the war broke out, she had five stalwart sons. They were all industrious, hard working men. Marcus L., the eldest is now in the 41st Battalion, Home Guard, about 40 years of age. Oliver P. was a member of Mallett’s Battalion, Company B. He was wounded at Kinston, N.C., Dec. 14, 1862, lived only 8 days afterwards. A.M. belonged to Company I, 16th N.C., and died of wounds or disease, (we are not certain which,) sometime in November, 1862. Wm. Edward was wounded some time in May or June last, and died July 23rd, following. Henry C. was killed July 24th 1864, at Petersburg, Va. What a record for the aged mother; neither of these men had either wife or children. They have fought and have died, solely for their country.  This is patriotism, pure and fervent.

• Died, of chronic diarrhoea, in the Winder Hospital, Richmond, Va., Sept. 12, 1864, John Archibald Lytch12, son of James Lytch, Richmond County, N.C., aged 26 years and nearly 7 months. Our departed friend volunteered in May 1861, and became a member of Company F, 18th Reg’t, N.C.V. (Scotch Boys) and so far as we have heard, was popular both with the officers and his brother soldiers, and sustained and unblemished character. Some years ago, when at home on a sick furlough, he made a profession of religion and united himself with the Methodist Episcopal Church, and from that time maintained a fair reputation for piety. He was in the trenches around Petersburg the 1st of September and on the 4th was sent to the Hospital. The next day he was so seriously indisposed, that he telegraphed for his father. He was exceedingly anxious to live until his father would arrive, and God in mercy granted his desire, for that dear father reached him 11 hours before he breathed his last. The meeting of father and son was deeply affecting. The son asked, “Father, will you meet me in heaven?” Having received a satisfactory reply, he then said, “Tell Mother, sisters and brothers to meet me in heaven.” He then offered up a long and most earnest prayer for his father, mother, sisters and brothers, and others dear to him, in which he did not forget his political enemies (the Yankees) but prayed that they might be forgiven, and inspired with a better spirit. But whilst he fell and prayed for all, yet his most earnest petitions were for the dear ones at home. So great was his desire on this subjet, that he requested the Chaplain who visited him, to pray for his dear parents, sisters and brothers. He said he would not be here long, that he was going home to heaven, that place of unspeakable happiness, of which he had a most delightful foretaste. So great was his joy, that he frequently exclaimed, “Happiness forever!” He resigned his consciousness to the last, and departed without a groan, a struggle, or the motion of a single muscle. His father grieved his remains, and amid the tears and sympathies of a large crowd of sorrowing friends, he was buried near his father’s residence with appropriate religious services. Our young friend kept a regular diary in which he made an entry every day. Post book is now in the possession of the family, and is very highly valued. Thus has fallen another of our brave defenders, and a young man of more than usual promise of future usefulness. May the grace of God sustain the stricken ones! Sept 22. A Friend

• Headquarters 14th N.C. Reg’t, near Strasburg, Va., Sept 21st 1864. “Mr. and Mrs. Presley Stanback, Again God has seen fit to allow you to be bereaved. Your son William fell shot through the heart on the hotly contended field near Winchester on the 19th inst. He died as George died, in the discharge of his duty. And a better soldier has never sacrificed his life in a holy cause…. As I wrote your daughter Ella a few days ago, William made a profession of religion after leaving home the last time. In the first conversation I had with him on the subject after he returned he made haste to inform me of the fact. He assured me that he felt that his sins were all blotted out, and though naturally reserved, gave me his fullest assurances that he was at peace with God. After this his walk and conversation with his fellow soldiers were in the strictest accordance with his profession. … He fell in the early part of the engagement, the first man in our Grigade who poured out an heart-offering on that day in the cause of truth, liberty and religion. As soon as I learned that he had fallen I hastened to his remains. I found his face pale in death, but his countenance was peaceful as the undisturbed bosom of a placid lake. And amid the storm of leaden hail that was still raging around where he lay, I felt the calm assurance that his soul was at rest with the God he loved.” Chaplain Power to P.N. Stanback
• Calvin Davis, Company K, 18th N.C.T., fell mortally wounded at the battle of Reams’ Station, Aug. 25th 1864. … While employed sharpshooting with the enemy, Private Davis received his death wound. He turned to a comrade and remarked: “Jesse, I am mortally wounded and have fought my last battle.” … During the night he expired. He was a native of Bladen County, N.C., and was 24 years of age. He was a young man of uncommon firmness of character and undoubted bravery. He leaves a father, mother and several brothers and sisters to weep for him. … To the charge of a sister State we committed his body; may she guard well her treasures for the Old North State has transferred many of her richest jewels to her keeping. There we would let him rest free from the dangers and toils of this cruel war.
• Died in Harrisonburg, Va., August 3rd, from a wound received from an accidental discharge of his gun, July 16th 1864, William Hugh Guthrie, son of German B. Guthrie, of Chatham County, N.C., aged 23 years 1 months and 27 days. He was a member of Company I (Chatham Rifles) 32nd N.C.T. … When about 15 years of age he made a public profession of religion and attached himself to the Christian Church at Antioch, in Chatham County, and adorned the profession by an exemplary and holy life. … He had participated in some of the most severe battles of the war unhurt, while many of his comrades fell by his side. He died a true patriot and soldier; and although his wound was accidental, he died as much a martyr to his county as if he had died on the field of battle

• Lieut. Ruffin Y. Ashe was killed in the 29th year of his age, in the fight at Reams’ Station, on the 19th day of June last. He was the youngest son of Pasqual P. Ashe, now of Green County, Alabama, but formerly of New Hanover County in North Carolina. Lieut. Ashe at the commencement of hostilities was attending a course of Medical Lectures in Lexington, Ky., and at the first note of war, hastened home and volunteered his services to his country, together with a number of young friends and relatives in Marengo County, Ala., many of whom, like him, fill soldier’s graves. … Adj’t. Ashe was struck by minie ball entering his front and left of his neck, cut the carotid artery, thus causing his death almost instantly from hemorrhage. He fell as soon as he was struck, and never spoke, only uttering one sigh or groan.

- Died on the 1st day of August 1864, at Point Lookout, in the 19th year of his age, Serg’t Frederick Nash, second son of the late Rev. Frederick Nash. His elder brother Henry, died a year ago, from disease contracted in the army of the Confederacy, but he died at home, surrounded by friends and relatives and family.

- Killed, on the night of the 1st Sept. 1864, in a skirmish with deserters in Moore Co., Lieut. James B. Usher, Company C 32nd Battalion, N.C.H.G., aged abt. 37. The subject of this notice was exempted from Confederate service on account of physical disability. At the organization of the Home Guard in Montgomery County he was unanimously elected 2nd Lieut; soon after he was promoted to 1st Lieut, in which capacity he served his Company faithfully until the fatal ball struck him, passing just above the heart, killing him instantly. Among those who have fallen in this cruel war there has not been a nobler heart than James’s—loved and respected by all who knew him. He was for a number of years a consistent and exemplary member of the Baptist Ch. He has left a sorely bereaved wife, and sorrowing father and mother, and brothers and sisters, to mourn his early death; yet they have an abiding trust that their loss is his eternal gain, for he was a Christian, an humble follower of the meek and lowly Jesus, and he is doubtless safe and happy now.

- Killed at the battle of the Wilderness, May 5th, Serg’t A.L. Presnell, Company F, 46th Reg’t, N.C.T., in the 21st year of his age. He leaves a father, mother, three brothers, two sisters, and a large circle of relatives and acquaint-ances to mourn his loss. Haynes professed religion early in life, and was a faithful member of the Baptist Ch.

- Killed near Winchester, Va., on 19th Sept. 1864, Lieut. Thomas D. Murphy, Company C, 31st Reg’t N.C.T. this gallant officer has been in active service ever since the commencement of hostilities, and with Early’s Command during the whole of the present campaign… Lieut. Graham of the same company writes: “As our line was advancing it became somewhat broken, when “Dag” and I rushed to the front! Dag, always brave, never showed more heroic daring than on the memorable 19th. I regret to say that his body was left on the field. Thus, in the bloom of manhood, has fallen our most esteemed comrade, but from his general Christian character we had a good hope of his eternal salvation. In writing to his sister, and frequently while at home—when wounded in ’62, he would tell her not to be so anxious about him, that he had given himself to his country in the beginning of the war and would most willingly die in her defense.”

- Killed at Drewey’s Bluff, May 14th 1864, Joel P. Atwood, while on a skirmish with this enemy, aged 18 yrs. He was a member of Company C, (Duplin Stars) 51st N.C.T. Though many weeks have passed since his noble and generous spirit departed from this earth, the wound is still fresh in the hearts of friends and relatives. He was ready at his country’s call to leave his pleasant home, with all its comforts, to share with others the privations of camp life. He was ever at his post; never known to complain or murmur. He was a brave boy and a true patriot.

- With deep regret we have heard that the gallant young Lieut. James W. Huske was killed in battle near Petersburg on Thursday last. He was the only son of his mother and she is a widow. In the beginning of this war waged for our independence, two joyous and happy brothers, the sons of the same excellent and beloved mother, went forth to battle, in health and in hope. John D. Huske, the elder of the two, died at October 31, 1864

Troops. … After the enemy had been entirely rousted at Reams’s and when our forces were pursuing the fleeing hosts, he was foremost in the pursuit, and when he arrived at the railroad and mounted the banks thrown up there, he received a wound in the bowels. It was hoped for some time that he might recover, but on the morning of the 26th he breathed his last. He expressed full confidence in Christ and believed his election sure. “Father, thy will be done,” was his declaration. Serg’t McPhaul was 24 years 9 months and 1 day old. He leaves an aged father and mother, four sisters and three brothers to mourn his untimely death. No braver heart or purer blood has been sacrificed upon the Confederate altar, “Dulce est mori pro patria.”
- Henry T.C. Chance, a private in Company E, 40th Reg’t N.C.T., son of Richard Chance and wife died at Fort Holmes, on the 6th instant of typhoid fever, aged 20 years 4 months and 9 days. He was the only son of his parents, much loved and esteemed by them, and upon whom they depended for assistance and protection in their declining life. … About one month before his death, he addressed a letter to Thomas Gibson informing him that God for Christ’s sake had pardoned his sins and that he desired his name enrolled on the Church book. And one of his comrades-in-arms informed us that he maintained the Christian’s faith to the last—and was able to say to his last word, that he was not afraid to die.

He was one of the first to bid adieu to home and loved ones in defense of his country. He was a member of Company C, 20th Reg’t N.C.T. He fought bravely with his Regiment through the campaign of Va., until he was wounded and taken prisoner at Gettysburg. He remained in a Yankee prison fifteen months—was at home but two short weeks when God called his spirit to a better land. Although he did not die on the battle field, no nobler soldier has given his life for his country than he. Brave soldier boy, peace be to thy slumbers! Cease, loved ones, cease thy mourning! Your loss is his eternal gain.
- Died at Winder Hospital, July 29, 1864, of chronic diarrhoeas, Wm. J. Peterson, Company O, 5th N.C.T., in the 21st year of his age, son of S.S. and C. Peterson, of Sampson County. - Col. Wm. F. Pfohl died on the battlefield at Gettysburg, while commanding the 21st N.C. Troops. This gallant young soldier was shot through the thighs, while leading his regiment into the thickest of the fight, and before the ambulance corps could carry him out of further danger, a shell struck his head, scattering it to pieces, and of course, killing him instantly! Col. Pfohln was a native of Salem, N.C., and joined the army on April 16, 1861. Upon the organization of the Forsyth Rifles, he was elected officer and sergeant, and, his gallant conduct, equable and temperament, and urbanity of manner, gained the esteem of all in the regiment, until, rising step by step, he became its Colonel. He had been in almost every battle fought in Virginia; was with Jackson in his glorious campaigns, and had been wounded only once, prior to the fatal battle of the 19th inst. His death removes another of the little band that survive of the original 87 members that compose the Fortyth Rifles. Death has been busy with them in every form, and now there are but six left of those who formed the company when it first left North Carolina; eighty-one soldiers’ graves.

He fell with his face to the foe, with his country’s flag in hand while full twenty yards in advance of his Company, which he then commanded. A more dutiful son, kinder-hearted friend, a truer patriot, a braver man, never fell by the hand of the Yankee foe.

- Died at General Hospital No. 4, Wilmington, on the 27th ult., of typhoid fever, Private Aaron Lockamy, of Company D, 26th Reg’t N.C.T. A few short weeks ago he was in our midst in the full enjoyment of health; but alas, he has gone. Never more shall we see his kind face upon earth nor listen to the soft secrets of his gentle voice; but he is not forgotten. His modest, retiring manners and courteous deportment will be remembered long after his form shall have mingled with its mother earth.
- Departed this life at his residence near Alfordsville, Robeson County, on the 18th of October 1864, Robert L. Monroe, Esq., son of Archibald and Flora Monroe, of Richmond County, in the 35th year of his age. In August 1863, he joined Capt. Buie’s Company, stationed in and around Wilmington, where he contracted the disease which proved fatal to him. He returned to his home the first of last August seriously ill and for two months and a half suffered intensely. A very few days before his death, when questioned relative to his preparation to meet the solemn approaching hour, his reply was: “If I am not deceived, I am ready.” He repeatedly said, that the 58th hymn of the “Psalms and Hymns,” was a favorite one with him.—“In evil long I took delight, Unawed by shame or fear; Till a new object struck my sight, And stopped my wild career. I saw one hanging on a tree, In agonies and blood; Who fixed his languid eyes on me, As near his cross I stood.”

• Martin Leach died January 2nd 1865, in General Hospital at Goldsboro, N.C. The deceased was a member of the Home Guard Company from Moore County, which was on duty at Kinston. He remained in the trenches near Kinston during the cold night of Dec 11th, while the enemy was threatening the place, He there con-tracted the disease which terminated his death. Thus is added another name to the many thousands whose lives have been sacrificed in our Country’s Cause. He was in the 35th year of his age. He left a wife and one child and a large circle of relations and many friends to mourn his loss. … The poor never turned empty away from his door. … He indulged a hope in the Lord Jesus Christ more than 7 years ago, under the ministry of Rev. D. McGilvray. He connected himself with the Presbyterian Church, and ever adorned the profession which he made by a godly walk and conversation. And we fondly hope that while his body quietly sleeps in the tomb near Union Church, where he loved to worship God that his emancipated spirit is among the saved on High, engaged in the songs of redeeming love.
