SECOND QUARTER 1981

LETTER FROM THE EDITOR:

Dear Members,

I want to take this opportunity to thank our supporters, many of whom are not members of Strickland Research, Inc., but are so willing to share services and information with us. Though we do not print advertisements in our quarterly, I feel we should recognize these people and let them know we appreciate the things they do with "no strings attached."

One of these people is Floreda Varick. She and Phyllis Smith write a column, "Genealogy, Anyone?", for the Cairo (GA) Messenger. Floreda is constantly sending us Strickland information, and recently sent all the Strickland marriage records from their GEORGIA MARRIAGE COLLECTION. Floreda and Phyllis have a marriage file gathered from many sources - county courthouses, family Bibles, county histories, genealogical periodicals, etc. - and will search for a surname in these files for a nominal fee. Anyone interested may write them (include a SASE) at: "GENEALOGY, ANYONE?", c/o Floreda Varick, 116 Glenhaven Terrace, Tallahassee, FL 32312. We will be printing the Strickland cemetery surveys, census records and marriages they have shared with us.

Another non-member who so often shares Strickland information with us (and, incidently, prints Strickland Scene for a very reasonable fee) is Joel Wells. Joel writes a genealogical column, "Know Your Kin," for the Fayette County Sun, and publishes a quarterly, "Armchair Researcher." Anyone wishing to place a query in his column may send it to Joel Dixon Wells, Route 2 Box 895, Hampton, Georgia 30228.

Beth Alligood has sent us newspaper clippings about Stricklands which she notices in various Georgia county newspapers. Beth writes the "Family History" column in News Daily, a Clayton County, Georgia, newspaper; and is glad to have queries about Georgia people. Her address is: Beth Alligood, 6177 Crestview Lane, Forest Park, Georgia 30050.

Joe Baggett, who publishes the DOUGLAS COUNTY GEORGIA GENEALOGY, sent us Douglas County information on Stricklands which we intend to print in a future issue. He also exchanges publications with us. (Joe Baggett, 8823 Rose Avenue, Douglasville, Georgia 30134)

Genealogical research is one of the only fields I know where professionals are so willing to help others even though they may not receive anything in return. Perhaps that's why I enjoy genealogy so much...and that's why I felt we should give these people our vote of gratitude.

Sincerely,

Nancy Cornell

CORRECTION of Obituary printed in Volume 2 Number 1, p. 16:

The obituary of CARL L. STRICKLAND printed in Vol. 2 No. 1 was taken from the "Pike County Journal and Reporter," and the information printed in this newspaper was incorrect. The following is a correction:

CARL L. STRICKLAND, member of Strickland Research, Inc., and a native of Pike County, GA., passed away at his home in Waterford, CT., on Dec. 24, 1980. He is survived by his wife, CATHERINE ROBERTSON MILNE STRICKLAND; 3 sons, ERIC CARL of Waterford, CT., LEE ARNOLD of Westbrook, CT., & ROBERT LEWIS of New London, CT.; and 2 brothers, GEORGE WILLIS STRICKLAND & ELTON SIMON STRICKLAND of Molena, Pike County, GA. CARL STRICKLAND's parents were the late CHARLES A. STRICKLAND & BEULAH BELLE BAGWELL STRICKLAND of Molena, GA.

STRICKLANDS IN GEORGIA AS INDICATED BY THE 1820 CENSUS

The 1820 Georgia census is the oldest available. The 1790, 1800, and 1810 were destroyed in 1812. There is one additional Hall County Strickland whose first name is illegible on census. There were three counties Franklin, Elbert, and Washington where Stricklands appeared prior but not in 1820.

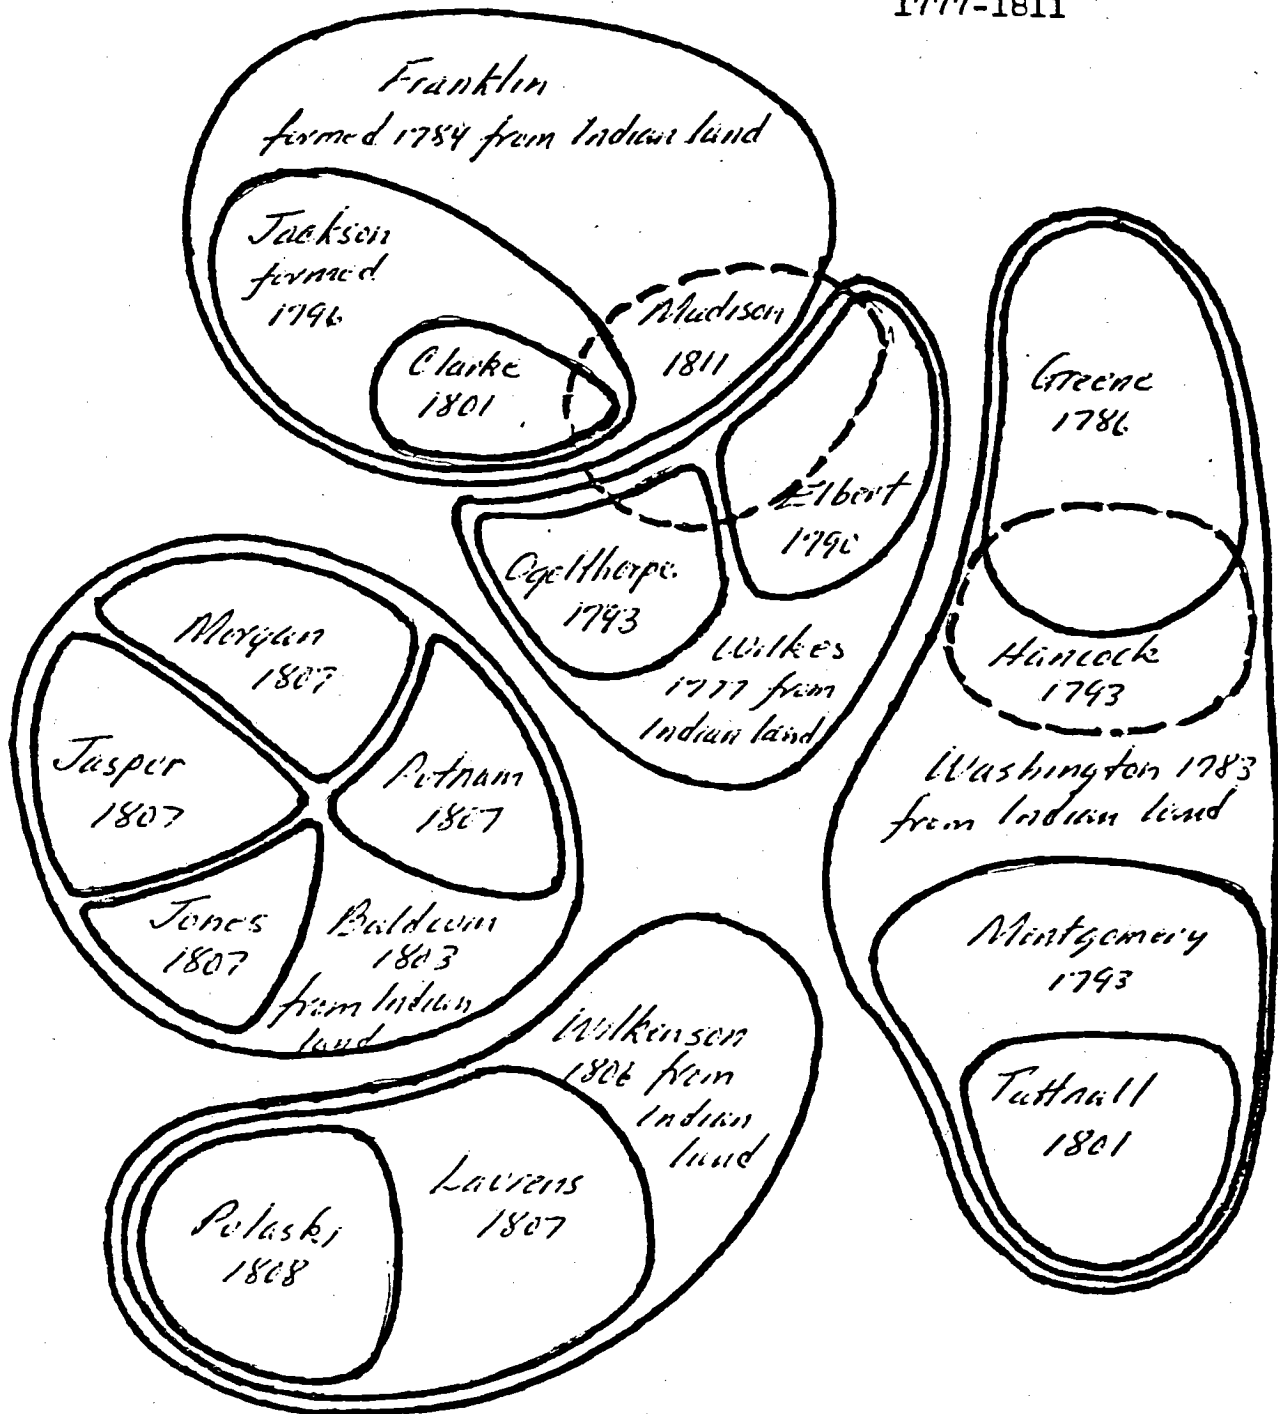

For an interesting surprise draw in the 1830 census on the above map and watch a dynamic expansion fall into place.

GROWING PAINS

The Complicated Dividing Process of Some Georgia Counties

1777-1811

Many Stricklands were arriving during the time of these early county formations.. It is very important to consider these divisions in tracking the early settlers. One good example of intanglement concerns Solomon Sr. who at one time or another left records regarding Wilkes, Elbert, Franklin, Jackson and finally Madison. It is doubtful that he moved five times in such a close area.

AN OLD SETTLER

This article was printed in the Atlanta Evening Journal in 1881. It was copied by Ann Lynn Link for the Gwinnett Historical Society, Inc.; and was printed in the March 1981 issue of their newsletter.

The oldest farmer in Gwinnett County interviews a fishing party:

"Where you'ne been?" The woods fairly echoed with the salutation and we all turned hastily to see who owned the thundering voice.

An old man stood by the side of the road - a kindly faced old man - and he made a picture as he stood there leaning upon a heavy hickory stick, his left foot raised from the ground and placed against the side of his right knee. He was clean shaven; heavy white eyebrows hung over his small keen eyes, which needed no glasses, and his white hair escaped from beneath a broad brimmed hat pushed far back on his head.

I was one of a fishing party which had been over to Suwanee Creek and we were on our way back to the Strickland Spring Hotel where we were stopping. There were five of us and we had enjoyed the ride over rough roads in a farm wagon. We had caught a few fish, but while at the creek I came across a fish trap, well stocked and I appropriated quite a string of fish among which was a "sucker." Suckers don't bite at this season of the year but I knew nothing of this.

The old man on the side of the road awaited an answer to his question, and I replied, "We have been fishing."

"Any luck?" The words were fairly yelled. The old man was not deaf and we were not either. It was only a habit of his to speak loud.

"Oh yes plenty of luck," I replied as I held up the string of fish.

The old man eyed them a moment and asked, "Where'd you get that sucker?"

"Caught him."

"How'd you catch him?"

"With a hook and line."

"Say that's my fish trap you have been in."

We owned up and the old man turned to me and asked, "Aint you the newspaper fellow that stopping at the spring?"

I replied that I was and asked whose fish trap I had had the pleasure of robbing.

"My name's Henry Strickland." He was the oldest farmer in Gwinnett County and a Georgia pioneer. He was born in Madison County on March 8, 1808 and moved to Gwinnett County more than 60 years ago. He was married in 1830 and had 13 children, 10 of whom are living and numerous grandchildren. He owns eighteen hundred acres of the best land in the county, and is third to the largest taxpayer. On one of his many acres is a notable spring of iron water for which an Atlanta syndicate once offered 10 thousand dollars. I wanted to see the spring and asked the old farmer if he would take me to it.

"Come tomorrow and we will have a jaunt," was his answer.

Next morning found me at his house. The old man's home is on the spur of the Blue Ridge. "When you pour water out my front door it goes to the Atlantic Ocean, and when you pour it out the back door it goes to the Gulf of Mexico," is the way the old man put it.

We went to the spring and had a drink of the best water that ever bubbled out of the ground. And then I had a tramp through the woods and fields. I think I walked 10 miles and I was getting tired. Ahead of me the old Gwinnett farmer trudged along with all the energy of a young man. I never complained. I would have lain down and let the great dissolution act take place on a bed of pine straw and oak leaves before I would have let an old man 80 years old know he had walked me down. Tired as I was I never once lost interest in my guide. He had ways of his own. At every house we passed he stopped and asked in tones so loud the squirrels ran for their holes.

"How are you?"

"Only tolerable," was the invariable answer.

"When do you think it will rain?"

"In a few days, for I hear limbs falling in the woods."

"How are the grass killers getting along?"

"Putting in good work."

I asked the old man if he wanted to sell any of his land and he replied, "not an acre." He had enough children to take care of it. "I started life a poor young man. I worked hard and when I had saved a few dollars I bought a few acres of land. I continued to lay by a little money and as fast as possible I bought more land. The more land I had the more money I made and I soon began to buy large tracts. I made it a rule to always buy land adjoining what I already owned and now I have eighteen hundred acres in one tract. The land is worth $20 an acre." I asked the old farmer in the eighty years of his life what was the greatest difficulties he had encountered. I wanted a lesson in life. His reply was, "toting babies and watermelons."

I left the old settler where a country road crossed the air-line railroad intending to walk down the track to the hotel. I enquired how far it was to Strickland Springs and he replied about two miles. "Two country miles, which means three miles," I said.

"Young man we can't lie about railroad miles - the mile boards are against us."

If ever you are in Duluth - don't forget to call on old man Henry Strickland. If you desire to meet a nice old farmer who will entertain you well and walk you to death if you will let him.

The above article appeared in the Gwinnett Historical Society Inc., Newsletter. It was copied by and submitted to them by Ann Lynn Link (Mrs. Robert Link). Mrs. Link is also a member of Strickland Research, Inc., and a great granddaughter of Henry Strickland.

HENRY STRICKLAND, son of ISAAC and MARY HARGROVE STRICKLAND, was born on March 8, 1808, in Madison County, Georgia. He married ANNE BROWN LENOIR in 1830, and moved to Gwinnett County, Georgia, settling near the Chattahoochee River between Suwanee and Duluth. There was a long dry spell in 1845 during the growing season and he tore down his home and erected it again on the Peachtree Road where it was still standing in 1946 (Ref: HISTORY OF GWINNETT COUNTY, GEORGIA, 1818-1960, Vol. II by J. C. Flanigan).

DO YOU KNOWSTRICKLAND

Ben Strickland, 72 Simpson Lane, Milton, FL 32570: Who are the parents of HENRY STRICKLAND, b. 1842 in S. E. Miss.? He was raised by a STINSON family who were supposedly his aunt and uncle. Courthouse fires destroyed pertinent records, and he is never found on records with his parents.

STRICKLAND

Daisy Strickland Dungan, Rt. 9 Box 566, Hendersonville, NC, 28739: Needs information on the parents of her grandfather, WILLIAM STRICKLAND (d. 1879) and SUSAN GAY STRICKLAND of Cumberland County, NC. Her father, JOHN WESLEY STRICKLAND, was born March 4, 1879, a month after WILLIAM died. JOHN WESLEY STRICKLAND's mother (Susan) d. when JOHN WESLEY was 4 years old. Does anyone have information on this family?

STRICKLIN/STRICKLAND

Sharon Hendrix Primeau, 910 E. Hazel, Ponca City, OK 74601: Does anyone know if the FRANCIS L. STRICKLIN listed in the 1850 Anson County, NC, Census was known as LAFAYETTE "FATE" STRICKLIN/STRICKLAND? The age is about the same and is the only L. STRICKLAND I find in the 1850 census index.

STRICKLAND

Kathleen Strickland Bell, 1250 Chestnut, Forrest City, AR 72801: Needs information on FREDERICK STRICKLAND of Wake County, NC (1790 Census). Interested in finding any clue to his brothers, sisters or parents.

STRICKLAND/WALLACE

Linnie E. Hylton, Route 2 Boc 299, Liberty, MO 64068: Searching for ESTHER STRICKLAND, born ca. 1817 in SC (1850 Itawamba County, MO Census); married STAFFORD GRAM WALLACE (possibly in SC); lived in Georgia, and then in Mississippi before moving to Douglas County, Missouri.

Children: GEORGE FRANKLIN: JULIA E.: MALCOM: ALBERT:
LYDIA: JESSE: COLUMBUS: ELLA: CHARLIE and WILLIAM.

JONES

Nancy Cornell, 1661 Lauranceae Way, Riverdale, GA 30296:
Does anyone know where and when JAMES JONES and ELIZA MCDOWELL were married in Georgia? They were living in Fayette County, GA, by ca. 1840; and in Campbell County, GA, by 1850. JAMES JONES d. 1854 in Campbell County, Georgia.

Freeman Strickland, Route 1 Box 26-S, China Grove, NC 280 23, submitted the following observations:

A QUESTIONABLE WILL ABSTRACT

In one of the publications of will abstracts, there is listed the will of one "Sol. Strickland" of Wake County, North Carolina, probated there 11 April 1785. Upon examining the actual will in the North Carolina Archives, I find the name is not "Sol." but rather Lot, who gave the names of his Mother, Christina (Chistinnae) and brothers, Brazel and Matthew, as benefactors. True, the name could be mistaken for Sol. at first glance. It is always a good idea to check the original will, if possible. Abstracts can have many unintentional errors. I located the above error while searching through many Strickland wills; and when I came to Lot's I knew I had made notes previously from an abstract that matched the details to a tee, but under a different name. So, be careful with abstracts.

SOLOMON WHO?

We know there were three Solomon Stricklands in Georgia in the very early 1800's - Senior, Junior, and another. This being established, then:

Who was the Solomon in Abbeville, South Carolina, in the 1790 Census?

Who was the Solomon in Horry County, South Carolina, in the 1820 Census?

Who was the Solomon in Kanawha County, Virginia, in 1820 Census? (This county is in the western part that later became West Virginia.)

And,

Who was the Solomon in Nash County, North Carolina, that sold the "land where he now lives" in November, 1786?

Freeman, you have certainly given us a lot of "food for thought." Do any of our members have the answers to the above questions?
