FIRST QUARTER 1982

LETTER FROM THE EDITOR:

Dear Members,

1982 began with a workshop on January 30th for those within commuting distance of Riverdale, Georgia. Members with ancestral ties to Clayton County Stricklands met to discuss and write the first draft of a biographical sketch which is to be included in the forthcoming book, CLAYTON COUNTY FAMILIES - YESTERDAY AND TODAY. The Strickland biographical sketch will also be printed in Strickland Scene.

My sincere thanks goes to Trina Scank Jackson and Sandra D. Usary for help "above and beyond the call of duty." They both spent several hours doing the extra office jobs I never seem to find the time to do. I sincerely appreciate their help.

Our next local workshop is set for Sunday, February 21st (2:00 p.m. to 5:00 p.m.), and a 3rd workshop will be held on Tuesday, March 9, 1982 (9:00 a.m. to 2:00 p.m.). All members are invited to attend. One of our projects at these meetings is to take inventory of the information in ancestor files, document files, and membership files; and to determine what is needed in the future. Another very necessary project is to catalogue the books, manuscripts and periodicals which are in the Strickland Library.

In regard to membership files - if you have not submitted an ancestor chart, please do so. Each file should contain an ancestor chart, plus pertinent information about you and your ancestors. These files are being set up for future generations of Strickland researchers, so think about what you would like for your descendants to know about you. Some suggestions of material you might want to place in your file are:

Ancestor chart and family group sheets
A short biographical sketch of member
Snapshot of member & perhaps of immediate family
Newspaper clippings on member or immediate family
Xerox copies of family pages in your present family Bible

I believe most of our members are aware of the fact that Strickland Research, Inc. is a non-profit organization, and any work done by officers or members is strictly volunteer. No one is paid for jobs within the organization and most of our information and library material is donated by members. Since we are non-profit, any donations are, of course, tax-deductible.

Our Constitution states that if our organization should ever disband, our files and library would have to be donated to a similar non-profit organization, such as, another non-profit family organization, an archives or a genealogical library. They cannot become the property of one individual. This fact alone guarantees the protection and preservation of the work we are now doing.

Many of our files are beginning to bulge with information submitted by researchers, but many of our membership files are empty. Though I sincerely hope we never feel the need to disband, it is sad to think empty folders might someday be placed in an archives to represent a former member of Strickland Research, Inc. While volunteer researchers can obtain copies of documents from various county records for our document files, only YOU can place material in your individual file.

If you have books you no longer need or past issues of genealogical magazines you are about to discard, please donate them to the Strickland Library. Though they may not contain information on the Strickland family, they may be helpful to someone searching for an allied line. Never throw away anything containing genealogical information. The chances are great that someone else can use it.

We will gladly print any old letters, old diaries or journals, or old newspaper clippings about our Strickland family. Or perhaps there is a story about the earlier Stricklands which has been handed down in your branch of the family. Though these stories may not always be entirely true, they can sometimes lead us in the right direction in proving connections to ancestors. If you feel you have something of interest to share, please let us know about it. Remember, Strickland Research, Inc. is interested in ALL the facts about our Strickland ancestors.

Sincerely,

Nancy Cornell, Editor

A M BAXTER'S VISIT TO SEE HIS KINSMAN
IN MADISON COUNTY, GEORGIA

The following article, submitted by Mrs. Robert Link of Decatur, GA, was originally written by her grandfather, A. M. Baxter, for a newspaper in Gwinnett County, GA. A. M. Baxter married Eunice Strickland (daughter of Henry Strickland, and granddaughter of Isaac & Mary Hargroves Strickland). Mr. Richard Mack Wheeler, who made the trip to Madison County with A. M. Baxter, married Abi Strickland, sister of Eunice. The purpose of the trip was to visit their wives' cousins, Sanders Strickland and Isaac Strickland. Though this article is not dated, it is believed to have been written around the turn of the century at a time when Commerce, GA, was still called "Harmony Grove."

EDITOR NEWS:- Having recently made a trip to my kinsman of Pontalisco District, Madison County, Ga., and being asked to write up my trip for the news, by your permission, I will endeavor to do so.

On the morning of the 6th instant, Mr. R. M. Wheeler and myself boarded the Southern at Suwanee at 10 o'clock; reached Lula at 11; changed cars on the Northeastern for Harmony Grove; arriving there at 11:30, that place being our point of destination by railway. We still had nine miles to go by private conveyance before we reached Mr. Strickland's. His home being the object of our visit.

Not knowing any one in town, we inquired for a livery stable, and one was pointed out to us, but we could not agree on the price, and it being a pretty sunshiny day and our legs being sound and having no baggage, we decided to walk out, so off we went without saying a word to anyone. I think we were the subject of some remark. By the glances cast at us, we hardly know yet whether we were taken for preachers or revenue officers. Wheeler would pass readily for a preacher, having a clerical appearance. Having walked some distance, I began to think we had better have paid the livery man's price. So, calling at a farm house and asking for a conveyance from a citizen, we soon agreed on the price. He soon had the buggy ready, which we mounted. He knowing the way and the gentleman we were going to see, he had agreed to carry us to Sanders Strickland's, a brother of Isaac, whose house we reached at 2 p.m. He recognized us, gave us a friendly greeting and asked us in. We dismissed our friend who had brought us out, but he persistently refused to have any pay. This was our first experience in Madison County hospitality.

This being my first trip to this part of the state, of course I had an eye to see how the country looked. Leaving Lula, which is in Hall County, the first place on the Northeastern is Gillsville, also in Hall; then follows Maysville in Jackson County, a very pretty place. Next place is Harmony Grove, or "Harmony," as the railroad people call it. This is a beautiful town of 1500 population. Yet it is strung out along the railroad for two miles. It has 20 stores, a bank, a warehouse, a cotton factory, a machine shop and four churches. The Baptists have a fine brick church of recent and modern inside decorations - cost some $10,000 or $12,000 dollars, I would say. The town also has a good high-school building of brick. There is an old land-mark in the lower end of town that is worthy of remark. It is an old sassafras tree, the largest of its species I ever saw, four feet in circumference and only 18 or 20 feet in height, that species of timber being of low scrubby growth.

"Harmony" is also in Jackson County. This is a fine section of the state. The land lies well for farming, nearly level, but I notice the farmers go in for cotton. I saw but little wheat sown and but few corn fields. From all appearances the land is owned by large land owners. I arrived at this conclusion from the dilapidated farm buildings along the railroad.

Jackson, Banks and Madison all corner about two miles east of Harmony Grove. Sanders Strickland lives in Banks. He is rather a peculiar sort of man in habits, a sort of recluse. He lives in a little single room house, but has a spacious barn and stables and a big crib. He has corn that is five years old. He has 400 acres of fertile land, and a half interest in 2,200 acres more. On the home tract, he has only one acre in cultivation. He is very careful of his timber, won't cut a green stick; goes over his woodland and cuts dead timber for firewood. He takes active interest in the welfare of the next generation. He says they will need the timber. He has the most magnificent forest there is in north Georgia. He takes no paper, does not vote, but has the highest sense of honor; has an abhorrence of fraud and deception. Up to a short time ago he lived entirely alone, but now has a housekeeper. There is no road leading to or from his house, and he lives a mile or more from the public road. Although he owns some 2,000 acres of land and a good bank account yet from his appearance you would think he was not worth a dollar. After talking with him an hour or two, we left him to go over to his brother's, who lives a mile further east.

We took a path that led us down to "Big Black Creek," spanned by a foot-log as Mr. Strickland called it, but really it was of stackpole size forty feet to farther side. Wheeler balanced himself over with a handpole. I had considerable misgivings about my ability to do likewise, but believing what has been done could be done again, I started and cooned it. Off we started and got lost, but on taking our bearings, we regained our faith and soon arrived at Isaac Strickland's, whom we found sick in bed. He, however, gave us a warm greeting. He has been confined to the bed four months. We found him better than we expected for we had heard of his serious illness before we left home. We had traveled 80 miles by railroad and 9 miles by private conveyance and "cooned" it over a forty foot pole, all in six hours.

Isaac Strickland we found to be quite different to Sanders in his tastes. He lives in a modern eight room house with furniture, carpets, pictures, etc., in keeping with demands or position he occupies in society. He has a beautiful location for his house. It seems to be a characteristic of the Strickland family to always build near a spring. He has a large landed estate (equal to that of his brother), but Isaac believes in cutting down timber and beautifying his premises, thereby giving employment to his large number of tenants - 17 families, consisting of 45 souls. They all have a fatherly regard for their landlord, and we had a pleasing illustration of this the last night of our stay with him. A Mr. Harwell and his three daughters, and a Mr. Streatman and wife came over after supper to see him. The Misses Harwell gave us some very fine music on the piano-harp. Then, they all joined in and gave us some of the best vocal music it has been our pleasure to hear in a long while. Although they were his tenants, they were treated with as much consideration as if they had belonged to higher society.

Isaac believes in making two blades of grass grow where one grew before. Mr. Strickland has a study adjoining his sitting room containing a library that you would hardly think of finding in the house of a non-professional man. Among his books I found the following volumes: History and Life of Washington; The Works of DeFor; Sketch Book By Irving; The Other Side Of The Mexican War; The Life And Times Of R. E. Lee; Bible Reading; Illustrated Stanley's Travels; Arabian Nights; Discarded Daughters; Katherine Walton; Georgia Form Book; King's New American Physician; Webster's Unabridged Dictionary; and The Holy Bible.

Until his protracted illness, he took two daily and five weekly papers, The Lawrenceville News among them. In politics, he is a democrat and a Gold Bug. In religion, he leans to the Methodists, though not a member. His wife is a Baptist. He takes a lively interest in all the topics of the day. Does not hesitate to take sides, and abundantly able to maintain his position. He has a fine vein of humor running through his make up and although he is bedridden, yet he has a high appreciation of a good joke. He himself has a fine store. I would give your readers a few, but I am writing too much.

We went to see the old ancestral house, built about 1800; built of logs, two rooms with rock chimneys, weather-boarded outside, cracks daubed with mud and lined with split boards inside. We saw the indispensable spring, and the old distillery furnace. The output was 2,000 gallons, peach brandy, the sales of which was the foundation of the splendid landed estate owned by the elder Strickland, which lies in Madison and Gwinnett counties. We also saw the big poplar tree, 17 1/2 feet in circumference, 60 feet to first limb, and 125 feet high - the largest tree I ever saw. Near by is a large beech tree with "Henry Strickland" neatly cut in the bark bearing the date of May 11, 1821. We also saw the tombs of Isaac and Mary Strickland, the parents of Henry and Isaac Strickland of Gwinnett County. The tombs are of the old style, huge slabs of Stone Mountain granite.

Neither of the brothers, Isaac or Sanders, have any children yet they have a landed estate of 3,000 acres between them. On their land is the ancient remains of a canal opened or dug about 1820. It looks like an old breastwork, but in reality is an old mill race. It was one mile long and was dug by the public. It was regarded as the biggest enterprise of the age, equaling the building of the Georgia railroad.

We spent one day and two nights with our kinsman. He knows well how to entertain a visitor. Although he was confined to his bed, his hospitality calls forth commendation of praise from all who visit him.

Madison County was organized in 1812; was named after James Madison. Danielsville, the county-site, was named after General Daniel. She has about 305 square miles, a population of about 12,000 and 1,700 voters. The tax rate is 90¢ on the hundred dollars.

There is one incident connected with our visit that I must not forget. It was the big chicken pie Cousin Missouri baked for us. It was large and fine, well seasoned and well cooked - tasted like an old ante-bellum pie. It was just splendid. I shall always have a pleasant remembrance of my visit to the hospitable home of our genial kinsman. This, Mr. Editor, is an extended write-up of our visit. Rather long, I admit, but I could not have said less and done justice to the theme.

I saw part of Hall, Jackson, Banks and Madison Counties and they contain a citizenship of which any state might be proud. I have seen the rich, alluvial bottoms of Arkansas, the broad fertile prairies of Texas, the cotton fields of Caroline, the mountain and valleys of Tennessee and Virginia and the beautiful capital of my country, Washington, but I would not exchange my home in old Gwinnett for any of them. I shall ever have a joyous pride in my old native county.

A. M. Baxter

DO YOU KNOWSTRICKLAND-BASKIN

Ben Strickland, P O Box 5147, Moss Point, MS 39563:
 A document found in September 1981 in the Courthouse at Meridian, MS, tells us that JOHN STRICKLAND who married PEGGY BASKIN in Jackson County, GA, December 20, 1816, is the JOHN STRICKLAND who came to Wayne Co., MS, in 1810. He apparently came to Mississippi, went back to GA in 1816, and married; then returned to MS. This document further states that her father was WILLIAM BASKIN and gives power of attorney to a Mr. Nicholas to obtain for her children property from the estate of WILLIAM BASKIN. Does anyone know who the brothers of JOHN STRICKLAND were? He named his children: ERVIN, DRURY, SOLOMON and SIMEON. There are STRICKLAND men with all these names in Franklin and Jackson counties early in the 1800's, but several of each name make it difficult to separate them. Would like to correspond with anyone who is working on this line & will exchange information. Any help will be greatly appreciated.

STRICKLAND STREET, USA

In response to a notice placed in Strickland Scene, Volume 2, page 72, we received the following:

ATHENS, GEORGIA

There is a Strickland Street on the east side of the Commerce-Colbert-Comer Road, as you go out of Athens, Georgia. This street, so named, is the result of L. C. Strickland's grandfather, JEREMIAH STRICKLAND, having built a house for his bride, Sarah Claudia Pittman (L. C.'s grandmother), when they married in December 1880.

FAIRBURN, GEORGIA

Strickland Street in Fairburn, Georgia, is named for ENOCH SOLOMON STRICKLAND, son of Bedford Beauregard Strickland and Alley Webb. This street bordered the approximately 200 acres ENOCH owned in the town in the late 1800's. Orchard Street, which runs off of Strickland Street, is where ENOCH's orchard once stood. The last house ENOCH built on this property is still standing on the corner of Strickland Street and Highway 29. ENOCH STRICKLAND is the gr-gr-grandfather of Nancy Cornell.

THE PHONIC SPELLINGS OF THE EARLY 1800'S

Reading early documents can sometimes be as much fun as locating a "lost" ancestor. While abstracting the loose papers of one of Georgia's early counties, I noted the following variations in spelling to share with you. NJC.

cutch...an adjective meaning "similar, or of a particular kind."

credit... "an account to be paid at a later date."

filed... "arranged in a methodical manner."

copy... "a reproduction."

sales... "articles which have been sold."

certificate... "a written declaration legally authenticated."

issued... "given out or delivered."

articles... "things of a particular class or kind; commodities."

college expencis... "costs of obtaining a higher education."

NOTICE:

Due to the ever increasing costs involved in preparing and mailing a quarterly publication, we have had to make a decision on whether to increase membership dues and subscription rates or find a more economical means of supplying our members with the same amount of material. Rather than increase our rates, we have decided to cut costs of packaging and mailing.

We have eliminated the extra expense of envelopes by binding our quarterly in a heavy cover. The cost of this binding is much less than purchasing folders which must be mailed in envelopes. It is our hope that this binding will withstand post office abuse and will reach you intact. Please let us know the condition of your quarterly when you receive it, and the length of time it takes to reach you.

We are having our cover design typeset. It was not ready for this printing; and, rather than delay this issue longer, we have substituted a typed design for this issue only. We hope our members will be pleased with the "new Look" of the second issue of this volume.

As another means of saving, we have now purchased a Bulk Mail Permit which will allow us to mail 200 or more pieces of mail at a greatly reduced rate. In order to reach our quota of 200 pieces, this issue is being mailed to all of our 1981 membership list even though a number of members have not yet submitted their dues. A red mark on the address label indicates your 1982 dues have not been paid. If you would like to receive the second issue of 1982, please send your dues as soon as possible. Dues for 1982 (including quarterly) are $10.

Volume One of Strickland Scene (1980 volume) has been reprinted and is now available for $10 (complete volume). Since this volume cannot be mailed under our Bulk Mail Permit, we ask that you include $1 for postage.

Volume Two of Strickland Scene (1981 volume) is temporarily out-of-print. It will be reprinted when extra funds are available, and you will be notified of this reprinting in Strickland Scene. The price of this volume will be determined by current printing costs.

CORRECTION:

We received notice of the following error after the correction page had been sent to the printers. Please add this to the list.

Vol. 2, page 15, last line (last date): the year of marriage of Robert Towler & Eunice Strickland should correctly read 1919, not 1979.
