EDITOR'S LETTER

Dear Members,

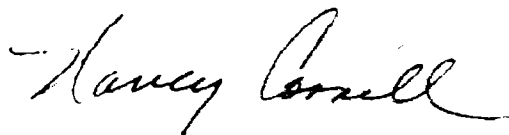

For those of you who have not noticed, Strickland dues are still $12.50. We are trying to keep them at this nominal rate for the time being. Your donations, over and above the $12.50 fee, are helping us keep our dues at this low rate. We appreciate your help.

All members desiring to see more about a specific branch of the family should send us some items for publication pertaining to that branch. Since we are now capable of including photographs, snapshot copies of your favorite old photos (including information about the subjects) would be of interest to all of our members. Help us make Strickland Scene better by sending us what you want to see published.

Mary B. Curtis has sent numerous Connecticut Strickland records for publication in Strickland Scene vol. 9, and has offered to send more in coming months, as we are able to print them, from elsewhere in New England, Pennsylvania and the old "Northwest". We thank her very much for these contributions!

If your recent queries do not appear, it is because the content of this lengthy issue "closed" two months ago so the index could be completed and the computer printer could begin individually typing the 15,400 pages it takes to produce this issue!

Thank you again for your support.

THE SEARCH FOR THOMAS

by G. Kent Strickland

Reprinted from The State: Down Home In North Carolina (v. 54, no. 6, November 1986)

I had found him at last. The reprinted newspaper article had just arrived in the mail from Mr. George Fluhr of Shohola, Pennsylvania. It told the story of a major train wreck which had occurred there during the Civil War. I had finally learned what had happened to my great-grandfather, Thomas J. Strickland, one-hundred and twenty years before.

My search had begun in 1954 as my father, brother, and I were battling the grass which attacked the cotton on our Cumberland County farm, and had to be chopped out on hot June days. I had remarked to my father that I knew nothing about his grandfather. He told me his grandfather was Thomas Strickland who had been killed in the Civil War at Drewry's Bluff, Virginia. He had been captured and was being transported to another location when he was killed in a railroad accident. He was married to Susan Gay who was from the northeastern part of the state.

The Search Begins

Armed with this information, part correct, part incorrect, I made up my mind to find out the facts concerning Thomas' fate. It was not until my student days at UNC that I began my search by finding the location of Drewry's Bluff and reading the details of the battle. There was no mention of a railroad accident.

Years passed before I visited the State Archives in Raleigh to begin a serious search for Thomas. There was no one by that name who had been killed at Drewry's Bluff. I was becoming frustrated and somewhat dubious that he had existed. Perhaps my information was totally wrong. I left the Archives more confused than ever.

Months later in Asheboro, where I now live, I was discussing my difficulties in finding Thomas with Carolyn Hager at the Randolph County Library. Mrs. Hager is a genealogist who tolerates no guesswork or false assumptions in ancestor-hunting. It was under her guidance that I discovered the marriage bonds of Thomas Strickland and Susan Gay. I next found Thomas in the 1860 census in Cumberland County. As to where he came from before that, I still had only vague clues. However, I now knew he had indeed existed and I would eventually find his resting place.

The Puzzle Solved

More years passed before I was able to find out any more information concerning Thomas. I was in Fayetteville on business when I decided to re-check some records in the court house. It was there I met John Rosser, a retired Colonel who was doing some genealogy work on people from eastern Cumberland County. I had some information he could use concerning other ancestors, and in our conversation I told him of my problems in locating Thomas. Days later, I received a letter from Mr. Rosser telling me he had found a Thomas J. Strickland in Company "I", 51st North Carolina Infantry in a corrected roster of Cumberland County Confederates which had been published around 1900. A further check of the State Archives obtained the Confederate service record of Thomas, and the other pieces of the puzzle fell into place. I learned from the service record that Thomas had been captured at the Battle of Cold Harbor and the railroad accident had taken place at Shohola, Pennsylvania. A telephone call to the postmaster in Shohola was made and he referred me to George Fluhr who sent me the information about the wreck. This information along with Thomas' service record, marriage bonds, and the Regimental history of the 51st enables me to tell the following story.

How It Happened

Thomas J. Strickland and Susan Gay were married March 7, 1861. This year is a key date in American History and we have all studied that it marked the beginning of the Civil war. I hope that Thomas and Susan had a few months of happiness from the time of their marriage, a month before the guns fired at Fort Sumter, until April 12, 1862, when Thomas was conscripted into Company "I", 51st North Carolina State Troops. The 51st was made up of companies from the Cape Fear Valley from Fayetteville to Wilmington. Company "I" was made up of men from Cumberland County between the Cape Fear and South Rivers from East-over north to the Harnett County line. The roster also includes some soldiers from Harnett and Sampson counties who joined to serve with friends and relatives in Company "I". The 51st regiment was joined by the 8th, 31st, and 61st to form a brigade under General Thomas L. Clingman.

The 51st initial major battle occurred on July 18, 1863 when it repelled a Union attack on Battery Wagner in Charleston Harbor. This gave the South a victory two weeks after the disasters at Vicksburg and Gettysburg. It was also the occasion of the first major use of black troops by the Union Army.

In 1864, Clingman's Brigade was sent to Virginia where it became part of General Robert Hoke's Division. On May 16, 1864 it was involved in the Confederate assault at Drewry's Bluff where the 51st earned the praise of Jefferson Davis for its part in the successful attack. From there, Hoke's Division, at the request of General Lee, was sent north of Richmond to Cold Harbor where it reinforced the Army of Northern Virginia. It was here that Thomas was captured.

Capture at Cold Harbor

Lieutenant A. A. McKethan of the 51st describes the action. "On June 1st, the Battle of Cold Harbor was fought. Here we were charged by line after line of the enemy, each line coming within a few yards of us, but our fire was so murderous they could not live under it. But notwithstanding, we killed thousands of them. Fresh lines were thrown at us until finally a lodgement was secured in a branch supposed to be impassable, and we were flanked and compelled to retire. Having driven the enemy from our front, the order to retire was not understood by part of our men and they were cut off, but not willing to give up . . . continued to fight until entirely surrounded, not only with live, but with dead Yankees." Since Thomas was captured at Cold Harbor and not Drewry's Bluff, I can only guess that one of his comrades after the war told Susan what had happened to her husband and got his battles mixed up.

Thomas was taken to the Union prison at Point Lookout, Md., on June 11, 1864. In this bloody summer, Grant continued his attacks on the Confederates and in the process lost more men than the total of Lee's Army. Such pressure on the Confederate forces resulted in many prisoners for point Lookout, and to make room for this influx, Thomas was among the first to be transferred to a new prison at Elmira, New York.

Thomas and the men of the 51st had at Battery Wagner and at Cold Harbor manned fixed positions against attacks from massed Federal infantry. It is very probable that he was personally responsible for many vacant places at future regimental reunions of the Union Army. As he left Point Lookout as part of the unhappy cargo of the steamer "Crescent" he had no way of knowing that the Gods of War, as if in payment, had called his number and he would not reach Elmira for forty-seven years.

The Tragic Train Trip

The "Crescent" docked at New York City, where it unloaded 823 Confederate prisoners and 128 Union guards. The troops crossed the Hudson River by boat to meet a train of the Pennsylvania Railroad and were taken to Jersey City, where they remained overnight. At 5 a.m. on the morning of July 15, 1864, they were loaded on a special train of the Erie Railroad for the trip to Elmira. A delay occurred when the guards took an hour to recapture three escaped prisoners. Another delay was caused by an open draw bridge that took two hours to close. It was not until 1:00 in the afternoon that the train pulled into Port Jervis, N.Y., to take on water and renew the supply of wood. There a crowd gathered to look at these grizzled captives from Lee's Army, since these were some of the first Confederate POW's to be sent this way to Elmira. The Confederates were reportedly surprised to see so many able bodied men in the crowd since every able bodied Southerner was in service.

The prison train was four hours late as it left Port Jervis and was heading toward disaster. The double track of the railroad ended at Port Jervis and for the next 23 miles the single track followed the Delaware River at Lackawaxen, Pa. The telegraph operator at Lackawaxen junction, drunk on the job, had let a coal train with fifty loaded cars on the track, despite orders to hold all trains until the troop train had passed. In a blind curve two miles west of the town of Shohola, the two trains met. Only the engineer of the coal train saw the rapidly approaching disaster and was able to jump. Almost immediately came the awful sound of the crash of the engines, the thundering of the telescoping box cars, and the roar of the coal cars as they piled up upon each other. Forty Confederate prisoners and twelve Union guards were killed instantly. Among them was Thomas and sixteen other members of the 51st North Carolina, ten of them were from Company I. They were probably riding together in the first box car, which was compressed into an area of six feet by the impact.

At Peace In Elmira

The good people of Shohola and other nearby communities brought food for the dazed survivors, bandages and medical help for the injured. In spite of their efforts, nine more prisoners and six guards died of injuries bringing the death toll to sixty-seven. A train arrived the next day to take those prisoners able to travel to Elmira, but Thomas and the other dead soldiers were buried in a trench beside the track near the Delaware River. They lay there until 1911 when their bodies were taken to Elmira and re-interred beside a monument to those killed at Shohola, listed with their names. It had been forty-seven years since they had left Point Lookout, Md.

Before I knew Thomas' fate I had often wondered what it would have been like to have talked to him across the impassible barrier of time. I would like to have asked him questions that every person involved in a genealogical search wants to ask. Who were his relatives? Why did he move to Cumberland County and from where? Where was Susan's birthplace? Did she have family in the Fayetteville area?

But mainly, I would have wanted to tell him that his little family had survived. My grandfather, who was seventeen months old when his father was killed at Shohola, received his education at the sawmills in the turpentine woods of the area. He cut a farm out of these woods, grew forty acres of cotton a year, reared fifteen children, and sent them to high school. The sons and daughters of these children had gone to college at UNC, Duke, East Carolina, Campbell and other schools in the state. The descendants of Thomas had been farmers, teachers, truckers, managers, mechanics, and administrators. They had reared families, paid their debts and as nearly as I can determine, managed to stay out of jail. For some strange reason I now have the feeling that Thomas has known this all along, and rests in peace at Elmira.

THE SHOHOLA MONUMENT

In 1911, the U.S. Government moved the remains of 49 Confederate soldiers and 17 Union guards from their resting place near the town of Shohola, Pa. to Woodlawn Cemetery outside the Civil War prison at Elmira, N.Y. A monument was erected over their mass graves with the names of the Union dead on one side and the names, companies, and regiments of the Confederates on the other side. The plaque to the Confederates reads:

"Erected by the United States to mark the burial place of forty-nine Confederate soldiers who, while prisoners of war, were killed in a railroad accident near Shohola, Pennsylvania, and whose remains were there buried, but subsequently removed to this Cemetery, where the individual graves can not now be identified

There are many errors in this roster due in part to the inability of a northern clerk to understand a southern dialect. Other errors were obviously made in copying the hand written lists of the casualties.

J. W. Cary I/51st is actually John W. Carrol. R. Briggs is Resden Briggs, A/31st. S. W. Lee is in the 51st regiment, not the 8th, and J. S. Reuls is Henry Revels A/31st.

The service record of D. W. Pope, I/51st, shows that he takes the oath of allegiance in 1865. The answer to this mystery is given in the report of Capt. Morris Church, the commander of the ill-fated prison train when he wrote: "many of the prisoners were so disfigured that it was impossible to recognize them, and five escaping whose names are unknown, I am unable to give a correct list of the killed."

The possibility exists that some of the names on the monument are those of the escapees and the mangled remains of some unknown Confederates took their places in the grave. The service record of Patrick H. Seago, B/31st and William Nunnery, I/51st indicate they died at Shohola but they are omitted from the list on the Shohola Monument.

It is also not surprising that an accident of such magnitude is unmentioned in Civil War histories. In terms of loss of life, it probably ranks very high among the worst accidents in American railroading. Yet, in 1864, the deaths of sixty-seven soldiers were far overshadowed by the events occurring at that time in Virginia and Georgia. The men in the grave beneath the Shohola Monument can be added to the list of those who simply did not come home from the Civil War and whose fate remains unknown to their families.

WILSON STRICKLAND AND ASSOCIATES

We are indebted to Wilson Strickland for posthumously having become the instigator of decades of genealogical research. The puzzle of this elusive Texan's kinship has provided a diversion for Strickland genealogists for over fifty years.

Strickland Research, Inc. member Ben Strickland, our most prolific genealogical publisher, in 1986 produced Wilson Strickland and Associates, a 220-page compilation of documents pertaining to Wilson Strickland and the men with whom he served or was associated in Texas, and other documents pertaining to the oil suits.

Quoting from Ben's book announcement:

"In 1932 the Conroe Texas Oil Field was discovered. In the midst of the Great Depression black gold flowed in a tremendous rush from the east Texas pine barren. Who owned this valuable land and its mineral rights??? That question baffled the oil companies and Stricklands and Vinces everywhere. Many thousands of Strickland and Vince descendants began research and eventually brought suit in 1940 in the District Court of Montgomery County, Texas. The trial lasted a year and the jury ruled in favor of the defendant oil companies.

"This was not the end of the search for heirs of the Strickland Oil Fortune. Suits continued to be brought and research continues today; more suits are contemplated.

"This book contains muster rolls of the three companies of Texas Rangers with which Wilson Strickland was associated and somme genealogical data on each man who served in these companies; Maps showing location of the Forts where they served; Genealogy of Allen Vince and Page Ballew; An article on William M. Burch; Facts about the Lost Book of Harris County; Reproductions of actual documents concerning the Vince-Strickland suit in 1848; Texas Land Office Records, and much more."

STRICKLAND Ralph S. Strickland, 8105 Bell's Lake Road, Apex NC 27502: Where was KNIGHT Edwin Herbert Strickland born? Who were his parents? In Wayne County
Marriages by Huxford Society (p.9) it indicates that Edmond Strickland married Sarah Elizabeth Knight. This "Edmond" is same person as above Edwin.
His brother married Sarah's sister the same day, 4 Mar 1868. Were there other brothers or sisters? Was Edwin's father Allen Strickland?

STRICKLAND Mrs. Vera Steele, Route 2, Box 28, Fancy Gap VA 24328: William BROWN Strickland, b. 12 Nov 1812, d. 19 Apr 1886 & his wife Martha Brown,
b. 14 May 1816, d. 23 Jul 1904 are both buried at Elk Spur Cemetery,
State Road 614, Fancy Gap VA. Five of their children, William, Anna, Maria, John & Rhoda are listed on the 1850 census of Sampson Co NC (family #398, p.389). Another son, David, who I assume was born in VA, migrated to MO from Fancy Gap. Another daughter, Polly Jane, probably was born after move to VA. John, my grandfather, also was buried in Elk Spur Cemetery. I would welcome any help with my family genealogy.

EVINS L. C. Strickland, 6504 Glade Avenue, Cincinnati OH 45230: I am still BAUGH trying to determine if George W. Evins was a son of John LeRoy Evins and his wife Nancy Baugh.

STRICKLAND Carolyn S. Clark, 1106 East 8th Street, Cushing OK 74023: Who were the parents of Richard Strickland, b. 1810-12 GA? Richard m. ca.
1832 to Elizabeth (?), b. ca. 1820-25 GA. They were living in Milton, Santa Rosa
Co FL in 1850-60-70. Their children were: Julia Ann, Martha A., James, Robert, Joseph, Simeon, Joel and Barry. I will appreciate any help.

STRICKLAND Wilma Stricklen Coats, 801 Ohio Street, Bicknell IN 47512: My great-BLACKMAN great-great-grandfather Brittain Strickland purchased 150 acres of land on 22 Nov 1777 from Joseph Blackman for five pounds. Brittain Strickland/Stricklin on the 1783 tax list of Duplin Co NC paid 16 shillings. Brittain Strickland's will dated 1807 in Wayne Co NC names son Brittain to whom he left his farm; daughter Mary is also named, and other children are mentioned without being named. Brittain Strickland, Jr. was in the 1810 census of Wayne Co NC. He is not listed in 1820 and 1830 censuses of Wayne Co NC. Brittain is listed in the 1840 census of Smyth Co VA, and in the 1850 census of Floyd Co KY. My grandfather is listed as a member of that family. Brittain died 27 May 1857 in Morgan Co KY. His death certificate states he was born in Wayne Co NC. I need to know where Brittain lived in 1820 and 1830.
